Ready—the New Tariff To Fight Hiram Johnson Horse and Clergyman Editors' Influence

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1922, by Star Co.)

The new tariff bill is ready, the Senate has it, a bitter fight will rage. That tariff will be higher than ever. That, undoubtedly, is necessary to protect American business men and workers against conditions in Europe. The revenue to be raised will be something over three hundred millions. Once that would have been a considerable sum, now it is "small change" in government expense.

One good feature stands out. Unless trickery changes the plan, plainly the tariff will be based on foreign valuations of goods, not on uncertain, changeable, dishonest, grafting American valuations.

There is no difficulty in establishing foreign value. United States consuls can testify to it. A business man can plan his business on that basis and knows when he buys his goods what the tariff will be.

The American valuation plan would have provided many berths for incompetents, much worry for business. It is to be hoped that is dead.

California will be interested to learn that in Wall Street the gossip runs as follows: "There will be another in the Senate in place of Hiram Johnson after the next election. Wise conservatives in California are picking out a man to run against Johnson. A safe and sane man of our kind, sitting in the Senate in place of Johnson, will be very welcome," etc., etc.

Wall Street gentlemen probably are counting their chickens in advance, for they don't know California as well as they know their stock ticker. But there is no doubt that a strong fight will be made against Hiram Johnson this Fall. The problem at present seems to be to pick out some clean nonentity to whom nobody can object.

The hard part for Hiram Johnson is that he is not able to go to California and defend himself against his usual collection of enemies out there. Only few in Washington know how hard he has worked to defend his State's interests in the preparation of the tariff. He has proceeded admirably, and California's products at this moment have the protection to which they are entitled if Senator Johnson should turn his back on Washington and go out to look after his own interests, the work that he has done for California would be undone. And as real Californians know, he is not the kind of man that drops a fight while it is on, whatever the consequences to himself.

Those who have traveled in California and talked to Californians cannot very well imagine the men and women of that State turning against Hiram Johnson, known and admired all over this country for his deep sincerity and first class fighting power.

When the time comes Hiram Johnson will roll up his usual California majority and continue his fight for the State destined to be the greatest by far in the Union.

To cut down California's giant magnificent trees would be a greater crime than cutting down Hiram Johnson in the midst of his career. And one would hurt the reputation of California as much as the other.

The oldest horse in the world, probably, is named Clover. Thirty-six years ago, at the age of fifteen, he retired from the trotting track and became the property of the Reverend Dr. N. Meyers, of Catawissa, Pa.

Dr. Meyers, too old to preach, can no longer afford to keep the horse, which is fifty-one years old, much younger than the reverend doctor.

It may be necessary to shoot the horse. Everybody will feel very sad about that.

What about the Reverend Dr. Meyers, retired on a pension of a little more than $1 a day, after preaching all his life? Nobody gets much excited about that.

Milford Kavanaugh, secretary of the journalism class at St. Mary's College, at Notre Dame, Indiana, asks me this question: "What is the CHIEF source of editorial influence?"

The question is easily answered by repeating what Isocrates, teacher of elocution, said in Athens twenty-three hundred years ago, when he taught oratory to Xenophon and other great men:

"To convince others, be yourself convinced."

Editorial influence means the power to put in other minds ideas that are in your mind. The only way to make others believe as you do is to BE YOURSELF CONVINCED. The interesting thing is that the sailor at sea, the street car conductor in the city, the herdsman on the plains, the child at high school, all know—heaven only knows how—whether a writer is sincere, or insincere.

3 KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK

Washout Derails Engine, Which Falls in Lake; Many Bridges Gone

Two trains were wrecked with loss of three lives; rail and trolley service interrupted and thousands of dollars damage done to property as the result of floods in Vermont, New Hampshire and Massachusetts today following heavy rainstorms.

In some places bridges were swept away and dams threatened with destruction by rapidly rising waters.

High water records were broken along the upper Connecticut River in the western part of the state and government flood warnings were issued. At White River Junction, Vt., the water reached the twenty-seven-foot mark.

With rivers still rising in all three States the biggest Spring freshet in years was predicted.

Washouts tied up train service on a number of lines and in addition to the two accidents that occurred several others were narrowly averted.

THREE MEN KILLED.

The most serious accident occurred at Lake Sunapee, N. H., where five cars of a freight train plunged into the lake. Three members of the train crew were killed. They were:

George Atwood, Concord, the engineer.

Ralph Ching, Manchester, fireman.

Ralph Kelley, Manchester, brakeman.

The engine crew were carried into the lake with the locomotive. The brakeman was killed when hurled from a car as it toppled down the embankment.

All met death instantly. The bodies of the crew were recovered. Six cars on the train remained on Washington, April 12.—A $10,000,000 income tax reduction to exporters using American ships was urged today by Norman B. Beecher recommended tax reduction as a means of insuring "full cargoes" for American ships.

RED SOX OPEN WITH MACKS

Reorganized Outfit Makes Its First Appearance at Fenway Park

By NICK FLATLEY.

Fenway Park, April 12—Boston's baseball lid was pried off here this afternoon by the walloping Red Sox and illustrious Athletics of other days.

There was the usual hurrah stuff, which included a band concert and cheers for the various players as they paraded to the plate.

The poor weather conditions kept the crowd down. Those who did turn out for the tussle sought refuge in the covered stands as they feared rain.

The Duffys displayed plenty of batting power in the practice before the game. The players swung lustily at the ball and reminded those present of the days when Boston was represented by a flock of free hitters in the Ban Johnson circuit.

Duffy didn't indulge in any speeches, but he let the world in on the fact he had a better ball club than in 1921 and that he looked for it to make a bang-up showing.

Hope of Fans for Team Is Kindled Anew.

The enthusiasm and the hope that dreary strings of defeat killed the year before, are kindled anew. Everybody's happy and cheerful and ready to raise the so-called roof when the hit skitters across the scenery and the home players chalk up runs.

That's peculiarly the situation in Boston today. Last year the fans deserted the Red Sox when the team faded hopelessly out of the race. During the Winter nothing was heard but criticism when Scotty was sent to the Yanks, McInnis to the Indians and a bunch of more or less shopworn performers acquired by the Fenway flock.

That's all forgotten today, though. The Red Sox opened the season and that's enough for Master Fan. Tomorrow he may have the hammer out, today he's cheering.

Means Nothing to Fan What the Experts Say

The baseball experts will tell you that the Duffys haven't the pitching or the defensive strength a real pennant contender needs. That means nothing. The red blooded

KIDNAPED GIRL IN BOSTON

Auto Bandits Bring Victim Seized in Stafford, Ct., Over Road in Car

A pretty girl, who says she is Mrs. Rosa De Brizzi, twenty years old, of Stafford, Ct., appealed to Patrolman Tobin of the Lagrange street station today for protection against two men who, she said, had kidnaped her from her home town last night and brought her to Boston.

She told the patrolman a thrilling story of assault in the dark streets of the little town, and of her frantic struggles to escape.

She was taken to Police Headquarters where she repeated her story. Detectives were set to work at once to run down her captors.

According to the story told by the woman, she started out from her home in Stafford, intending to go to a nearby grocery to purchase food for this morning's breakfast.

FLUNG INTO AUTO.

Her way led through a lonely section, she said, and while she was between two houses, a large automobile rolled up to the curb and two men jumped out.

Before she could scream they seized her and flung her into the rear seat of the car, saying only:

"We are going to take you away from your husband."

In the car she attempted to struggle, but one of the men held her firmly, while the other drove northward.

The two men, she declared, conversed from time to time in muttered Dalian, but said nothing she could understand.

Shortly after 5 o'clock, her story went on, the car reached the South End here and began winding through the dark streets.

CONCEALED DIAMOND.

In an alley it stopped and one of the men ordered her to get out.

"You stay right here," she was told, "we are coming back for you in a few minutes."

As soon as the car rolled off, however, she ran down into the nearest street, where she found the policeman.

The young woman said she had $5

ATTORNEYS CALLED TO STATE HOUSE

Attorney-General and County Prosecutors to Act on Wave of Outlawry

Every district attorney in the State has been requested to meet Attorney-General J. Weston Allen at the State House Saturday morning to take steps to stop the crime-wave in Massachusetts.

The Attorney-General announced today he had called the conference, by letter and had requested that the Attorney-General's Department in Washington send a representative to be present.

"I trust you will be prepared to advise the conference of conditions in your district," the Attorney-General's letter read, "and will have suggestions for a remedy."

"The conference," he explained, "is called for the purpose of considering the best means of meeting present difficulties and of enforcing the laws to secure greater uniformity in the prosecution of crime in the several districts and to bring about greater cooperation between Federal law enforcement officers and the local authorities throughout the Commonwealth."

This action follows the rigid investigation already started in Middlesex County by District Attorney Endicott P. Saltonstall on the activities of "sponing gunmen" and bandit gangs linked with beautiful girl accomplices.

DRIVE TO ENFORCE LAWS

It also came in conjunction with the appeal made by Governor Cox for the infliction of rigid penalties on convicted gangsters and the action of the Legislative Committee on Public Safety which voted today to report the Fitzgerald Firearms Bill.

This bill was introduced by Representative Michael J. Fitzgerald of Worcester, to stop the crime wave and provides for careful regulation of sales of firearms and heavy penalties for violators.

That a large, mobile police force is an imperative necessity to break up the auto gangs that infest the rural communities was today set forth by Representative George Pearl Webster of Boxford in the House as the principal reason for the proposal to increase the State Constabulary to 140 members. There are now 500 constabularymen.

PROTESTED BY LABOR.

Webster said that roving gangs of thieves in autos invade the country districts, robbing homes, stealing autos, holding up payroll clerks in the lesser manufacturing communities and even descending to the small time thieving of apples and vegetables.

Representative Harrington of Fall River protested that the scheme would involve expense of $500,000 a year ultimately. He said that organized labor everywhere regards the measure as an attempt to establish a police force to put down strikes.

Representative Hull of Leominster said the constabularymen, equipped with motorcycles, have already put several auto gangs to rout. The force must be increased, he said, if it is to make any pretense to cover the State as a whole.

The House ordered the bill to a third reading. Another fight will be made against it when it reaches the final stage tomorrow.

AUTO BILL.

A bill intended to reduce the crime wave by providing severe penalties of fine and imprisonment upon any person who alters the name, number or other devices on an automobile was today advanced to a third reading in the House.

The bill received the unanimous support of the lower branch. After one more reading, the bill will go to the Senate.

Under the terms of this proposed law, the possession of an automobile from which the numbers and other vital marks of identification had been destroyed would be regarded as prima facie evidence of intent to commit crime. The bill carries a maximum penalty of one year in prison.

Lloyd George to Try to Prevent War in Europe

Genoa, April 12 (By the Associated Press).—Prime Minister Lloyd George is expected to propose at the earliest opportunity, probably at tomorrow's sitting of Commission No. 1 of the economic conference, a pact, or undertaking, that no nation shall attack another, thus abolishing the possibility of war for the duration of the agreement, Reuter's correspondent today says he has learned.

KATAMA MILL IN LAWRENCE IS SHUT DOWN

American Woolen Company Workers Assessed 10 P. C. for Relief of Strikers

Lawrence, April 12.—Closing of the Katama Mill, a report that strike breakers were to be imported by the Acadia Mills and announcement of a ten per cent. relief assessment on the employes of the American Woolen Company today marked the strike of 20,000 textile workers here.

The Katama is the sixth mill obliged to close because of the strike.

The report that strike breakers were expected at the Acadia plant resulted in the appearance on the picket lines today of a reduced force. The pickets were led by Francis J. Gorman, strike organizer of the United Textile Workers.

No "breakers" materialized, however, when the mill opened.

A report that the Arlington Mills planned to reopen with a 10 per cent. wage reduction in force was termed "absolutely false" by Asa Franklin W. Hobbs. The wage cut that precipitated the strike was 22½ per cent.

A big parade on Patriots' Day and a mass meeting, with a leader of the Dublin Easter uprising as the principal speaker, are planned by the strikers.

JOBLESS IN HUB TRIPLED IN TWO YEARS

Unemployment Situation Report Reveals Astounding Amount of Aid Rendered

An alarming example of the unemployment situation in Boston is revealed in a report filed with Mayor Curley today by the chairman of the Overseers of Public Welfare.

The figures in aid given to men out of work in same cases from January 1920 to March 1922 have tripled. For instance lodging was given to 182 in January 1920; January 1921, 1011; January 1922, 1409; and in March 1922, 4947.

The number of meals given out in January 1920 was 481; January 1921, 1922; January 1922, 6648; and March 1922, 10,130.

When the first figures were submitted to the Mayor he was appalled by their size and sent them back for retabulation they however, came back as correct.

R. I. Mill Owners Are Attacked By McMahon

Pawtucket, R. I., April 12.—Thomas F. McMahon, president of the United Textile Workers, arraigned the mill-owners in a statement issued here today. He charged that had the Jenckes Spinning Company been willing to negotiate with the employes the one fatality resulting from the strike would have been averted.

McMahon said, in arguing against wage-reductions, that in five years —from 1916 to 1921—the Jenckes Company made profits of more than $10,000,000. The profits average 17 per cent. on common stock, he said.

This was in addition to 7 per cent. paid on preferred stock and to stock dividends of 20 and 100 per cent., he declared.

CALLS POLICE AS BURGLAR IS AT WORK

Awakened while a burglar was ransacking another room in his home, Joseph Lunandin of No. 25 North Bennett street, calmly stepped out of bed today, crossed to a telephone and called aid from Station 1 on Hanover street.

Two minutes later Patrolman Michael Flynn, pistol in hand, entered the North Bennett street house and surprised a man rifling a trunk in the Lunandini apartment.

The intruder surrendered at sight of the gun. He said he was Joseph Infantini of Chelsea street, East Boston. A kit of burglar tools was found in his possession.

In court he was held in $2,000 for the Grand Jury on a breaking and entering charge.

Youngstown, O., Broke; Will Fire 110 of Its Policemen

Youngstown, O., April 12.—With the approval of the Chamber of Commerce, Mayor George L. Oles announced today he would reduce the police and fire departments to twenty-five men each. There are 135 police and about 80 firemen at present.

Those who want additional fire and police protection must band together and hire it, the Mayor said.

The city has no money to pay salaries, and the banks have refused to lend any.

the tracks when the coupling broke. Five men in the caboose escaped injury. The wreck was due to a washout.

The second wreck occurred near Danby, Vt., when five cars of a New York express jumped the rails. The passengers were shaken up, but no one was hurt. The tracks were covered with water to a depth of two feet where the mishap occurred.

TRAINS SUSPENDED.

The flood in the vicinity of Rutland, Vt., was caused by melting snows in the mountains during one of the heaviest rain storms on record.

The highest flood stage in seven years was reported on the Passumpsic River from St. Johnsbury, Vt. The interstate bridge at Woodsville, N. H., was swept away.

The Passumpsic division of the Boston & Maine line has been forced to suspend trains because of the inundation.

Many towns along the Passumpsic and Connecticut rivers in New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts were reported under water and scores of houses and business blocks in danger of destruction.

At Bellows Falls, Vt., the Connecticut was reported to have risen three feet within twelve hours. Another rise of eight inches, it was said, would flood a Boston & Maine tunnel in that vicinity and force a detour of all trains on the division.

Trolley service between Northampton and Holyoke was cut off by flooded highways. The river, at Springfield had reached the highest peak in nine years.

At Weare, N. H., a dam on the Piscataquog River gave way and a part of the town was flooded. Grist's Toy Factory was under water.

Overflows also were reported by many towns along the Merrimack.

HELD AT WORCESTER FOR THEFT OF AUTO

Worcester, April 12.—Louis Rubin, a former policeman and fireman of Yonkers, N. Y., was turned over to a Yonkers official today by the Worcester police on a charge of stealing an automobile in that place. He was caught trying to dispose of the car in a local garage and gave the name of Joseph Martin of Springfield, Mass. The Yonkers policeman, who came for him today, identified him as Rubin.

on her, which was taken away by the men. She says they also stole her wedding ring. She added that she was able to conceal a valuable diamond ring in her stocking before the men could seize that.

She insisted she did not know the men or had ever seen them before.

She was unable to explain why they had taken her away. One of the men, however, she said, mumbled:

"We're doing this for your husband. We're going to take you from him."

ACCUSES HUSBAND.

She said she had her husband arrested four or five times for being cruel to her. They had lived in Stafford for two years, she said, during which time her husband had never worked. She said she supported him and herself by doing housework for neighbors.

Her family lives in Jamaica, Long Island. The family includes seven children.

At the Lagrange street station she was offered food, but declined to eat.

All stations have been notified to watch for an auto bearing the New Jersey registration number "1137-73." This number was supplied by the girl.

The girl described her captors as foreigners. One wore a light cap, the other a brown fedora hat.

She said they made no attempt to attack her.

The young woman was well dressed in a brown Winter coat, green straw hat, white shirt waist and white sneakers. She had a large diamond ring on her hand.

FISHERMAN LOST IN FOG REACHES LAND

New Bedford, April 12.—William Donahue, a member of the crew of the Gloucester fishing schooner Sadie N. LEHIGH & N. E. GETS $675,000 FEDERAL CASH

Washington, April 12.—The Railroad Administration announced today payments of $675,000 to the Lehigh & New England Railroad Company and $15,000 to the Ogden Union Railway & Depot Company in Utah, in final settlement of claims against the government during twenty-six months of Federal control.

CURLEY CALLS FOR ACTION ON 5-CENT FARE

Writes Speaker Young, Hitting at "Apparent Hostility" to Measure

Mayor James M. Curley today fired another broadside for the five-cent car fare.

In a letter to B. Loring Young, Speaker of the House of Representatives, the Mayor asks the Speaker to hasten action on the resolve, now pending before the Rules Committee of the House, providing for a legal opinion from the Attorney-General on the legality of canceling the State's contract with the Boston Elevated.

The letter, which the Mayor made public today, points out that his "best efforts" to keep his pledge to bring back the five-cent fare have been "blanketed by official inaction and indifference."

Mayor Curley declares it is a "monumental proposition" to declare that the Act under which the ten-cent fare is imposed is a "contract with the Elevated Railway Company and therefore cannot be repealed"

DISCUSSES CONTRACT.

"If a contract," he says, "is secured by one individual from another by fraud or the corruption of another's agent, the contract is invalid.

"But it is said that to this contract this rule does not apply; that no matter how flagrant the fraud by which this contract was secured the Commonwealth has no remedy; that no matter what the means used to drain from the people ten or fifteen million dollars of their money into the coffers of this corporation, there is no redress.

"If this is true," the letter continues, "it would mean that in case a band of criminals should bribe the requisite number of legislators to vote the purchase of a worthless property for ten or fifteen million dollars they would be beyond recall from such a fraud. If that is the situation, then the people ought to know it."

"To test the question whether there is a remedy possible," the letter adds, "Representative McCormack, at my request, some time ago introduced a resolve asking for the opinion of the Attorney-General as to whether, in case it could be shown that this legislation was secured by the fraud of the Elevated Railway, or in its behalf, proceedings might not be properly instituted in behalf of the Commonwealth to have this contract set aside.

"APPARENT HOSTILITY."

"This resolve, I am told, is sleeping quietly in the archives of the Rules Committee, of which you are chairman. It appears to be receiving that same inaction and silent hostility which have defeated my other efforts to secure legislation.

"I ask your assistance in this important matter. Will you not see to it that the rules committee set upon the report of this resolve immediately, and that the action of the Legislature thereafter be expedited?

"If, however, the committee hesitate to report the resolve without further consideration, I request that an immediate public hearing be given. I should like to appear before the committee to state the reasons for action and prompt action."

ACCUSES BROKER'S LIABILITIES $214,200

New York, April 12.—Liabilities of Alfred E. Lindsay, bankrupt stockholder, who is under indictment for fleecing society women out of large sums entrusted to him for investment, were placed at $214,200 in a schedule filed in Federal Court in the bankruptcy proceedings today.

Assets were listed at $265,100, but this includes $250,000 in stock of the Pacific Mineral & Chemical Company, which Lindsay says was promised him for his promotion work, but has not yet been delivered.

The cruiser Dolphin, formerly official boat of the Secretary of the Navy, which was recently sold to the American Product Company of New York, left for that city today. It will become a freighter.

The dynamite cruiser Vesuvius has been offered for sale by the Navy Department. She has been serving as a training ship at Newport. The Vesuvius covered itself with glory during the Spanish War.

SPANISH WAR MEN WILL GET TIME OFF

Mayor Curley today informed heads of city departments that they must comply with the order passed by the City Council that a leave of absence be granted to all city employes who are members of the Spanish War Veterans' Association to attend the convention of the organization April 17-19.

COLD-BLOODED KILLING OF U. S. TROOPS

General Graves Accuses Semenoff, Anti-Bolshevist Leader, to Senate Committee

Washington, April 12. (By International News Service).—The cold-blooded killing of American soldiers and of helpless Russian prisoners by the anti-Bolshevist forces in Siberia was described before the Senate Education and Labor Committee today by General W. S. Graves, who commanded the American military contingent stationed there.

Gregorie Semenoff, former anti-Bolshevist general, now under arrest at New York City, was denounced by General Graves as a man who possessed no capacities in Siberia of being a "brutal and unconscionable murderer and robber."

General Graves was the first witness called when the investigation of Semenoff's activities in Siberia and of his presence in this country got under way.

General Graves related of an occasion when an American officer and four American soldiers were captured by Semenoff's anti-Bolshevist soldiery and shot.

He testified that at 1 o'clock on one morning Semenoff's men fired into a box car in which American soldiers were sleeping and killed two and wounded several of them.

Semenoff was represented at the hearing by John Kirkland Clark, member of a New York law firm, who provoked smiles in the crowded committee room by stating that his client was unable to be present because of the reception he had been accorded at New York city.

Clark, in questioning General Graves, sought to show that the latter's testimony was based on "hearsay evidence" and that the general was relying upon the reports of his subordinates and of Bolsheviks for the grave charges he made against Semenoff rather than upon any personal knowledge of personal eyewitness of Semenoff's responsibility.

Last Saturday we advertised 1009 boys' all wool suits at $7. These suits were on sale exactly as advertised and each lot was tested in our own laboratory and found to be all wool before we advertised them.

There were, however, 291 suits containing respectively 24%, 27% and 37% cotton which were not placed on sale with the original 1009 suits, and which through carelessness were put on sale late in the afternoon with no explanation that they contained cotton.

For this we are sorry, and if those who purchased them under a false impression will return them we will cheerfully refund their money.

FATHER'S DUAL LIFE REVEALED BY BROOKLINE DAUGHTER'S SUIT

RICH MAN BIGAMIST, SHE SAYS

Greenwood's Guilty Secret Kept for 20 Years, According to Mrs. Green

Her story of how her father, the late Frederick Greenwood, wealthy chair manufacturer of Templeton, married another woman by whom he had a child while still married to her mother, was told today in detail for the first time by Mrs. Mabel G. Green of Brookline.

Mrs. Green has filed a suit to recover her alleged share of the fortune left by Greenwood to Mrs. Grandina Greenwood of Somerville and her son, Talma Temple Greenwood, a Boston mechanical engineer and patent attorney. Both mother and son are preparing to fight to clear their names of the charges brought by Mrs. Green.

Like the plot of an old-fashioned novel did the tale that Mrs. Green told to a Boston American reporter read. She is the mother of four children.

Mary Ann Greenwood, legal wife of the chair manufacturer who was also a pioneer in electrical research, died in County Down, Ireland, October 17, 1891, without knowledge of her husband's marriage to Mrs. Green. She had supposed that he was dead, when as a matter of fact, he lived for thirty-seven years after is presumed demise.

Mrs. Green declared that she learned by chance of her father's second marriage when she was a young girl and that in respect to him she kept his alleged marriage secret for twenty years until the suit she brought through Owen A. Hoban, administrator of Greenwood's estate and Attorney Hugh W. Ogden, made public the marital tangle.

Hoban, in his petition, declares the second Mrs. Greenwood and her son in 1917 used undue influence upon Greenwood, to will his property and fortune to them.

Greenwood died May 13, 1918, in Templeton. He was sixty-seven years old.

Judge Sisk of the Suffolk Superior Court has issued a temporary injunction restraining Mrs. Greenwood or her son from disposing or transferring any of the property, or the large sums on deposit in Greenwood's one Boston banks. An early hearing of the case is looked for.

"For a number of years I did not know that my father had married again or indeed that he ever had," said Mrs. Green. "Then by accident, facts came to my attention which made me think that the story of his early death might be untrue. Upon investigation I found that he was living as an honored citizen of Templeton and that he had married again during the life of my mother and had one son.

"I loved and honored him. I asked nothing more than to meet his wishes. Therefore to protect him, his name, and reputation, I never called on him in Templeton or brought any of the facts to public attention."

The story, however, more properly begins with the marriage of Frederick Greenwood and his first wife, Mary A. Schillree, in Boston, October 17, 1877. Rev. Frederick B. Allen, now head of the City Episcopal Mission, was the clergyman.

Greenwood had for twelve years worked as a reporter on Boston, New York and Chicago newspapers. In 1877 the first Mrs. Greenwood left on a visit to County Down, Irsland, her birthplace.

During her absence, according to the story now unfolded, Greenwood went West. In Milwaukee, Wis., he met the then young and beautiful Grandina Leutheuaser. Came ardent wooing and a courtship that resulted in their marriage there May 11, 1880. A Rev. S. S. Stein officiated.

From that time on Greenwood passed completely from the lives of "Wife No. 1" and his then infant girl. "Wife No. 1," it is asserted, was informed her husband had been killed in a railroad accident. And Mabel was brought up believing her "daddy" was dead.

Sam Johnson, the forty-four-year-old "human locomotive" steamed up to City Hall today, met Mayor Curley and then staggered away for a sleep.

He had just completed a run from New York, legging the 256 miles in forty-six and a half hours. He left the Broadway municipal palace at 10:44 a. m., on Monday and arrived at Boston's municipal capitol shortly after 10 o'clock today.

He was accompanied by a lot of sensible people in an automobile. One of them is supposed to lose $5,000 by Sam's ability to link the two cities in a continuous run. If Johnson had taken more than 50 hours he wouldn't have collected the $5,000.

Now that he has it a lot of folks will be interested in the location of his hotel to take it away from him. This Johnson didn't reveal as he left City Hall.

Just why Johnson wanted to run to Boston is a mystery. According to New Yorkers one is supposed to run to New York, not from it.

To those who are interested in eating on the run Johnson says he ate the following meals:

New York, eggs, rolls and coffee.
New Haven, coffee, eggs and rolls.
New London, rolls, eggs and coffee.
Providence, coffee, rolls and eggs.

Johnson dropped twenty-six pounds on the trot from Broadway to School street.

PROBATION FOR GIRL CHECK PASSERS

Melrose Young Women Accused of Obtaining $160 by Forgeries

Two young women of Melrose, charged with obtaining money by means of forged checks were placed on probation by Judge Brown in the Cambridge Superior Criminal Court today.

They were Mrs. Alice Hall, nineteen years old, and Miss Alta M. Trumbull. Both formerly were employed as waitresses in a Chinese restaurant in Malden.

Inspector John Leyward of Malden, brought them back from Rochester, N. Y., on a warrant. Indictments obtained on complaint of the First National Bank of Malden, charging them with having forged checks.

Mrs. Hall is alleged to have obtained $40 on one check and Miss Trumbull $111 by the same means.

Edith Louise Clowes Hughes is a fortunate name and the young lady was awarded a warm pride yesterday. Is your name fortunate, too? Why not find out? $1000 in cash will be paid this week to owners of fortunate names. See the Boston Daily Advertiser every day.—Advt.

PIERCE ACCUSED BY PELLETIER ON STAND

Says Judge Acted as Personal Counsel for Ulmer in Court Suit

Former District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier, appearing as a witness at the legislative hearing on a petition for removal of Supreme Court Justice Edward P. Pierce, today accused the judge of acting as personal counsel for Attorney W. Edwin Ulmer in a suit.

Pelletier stated Pierce admitted he had acted as Ulmer's counsel during a conference he had with the justice, while serving as an attorney for Mrs. Mary A. Hand, lessator of the conservatories, at the time roses were alleged to have been stolen Judge Pierce.

REFUSED RECEIVER.

Pelletier said he had caused an investigation to be made into the company's business and finally had gone to Pierce to seek appointment of a receiver.

"You won't get a receiver in this court," he testified Judge Pierce declared. "And I don't think you can get one in the Superior Court either."

Pelletier said the judge loyally defended Attorney Ulmer, counsel for the conservatories, and described him as a "fine man and the right sort of man."

"The heirs should be thankful to have a man like Ulmer to handle their affairs," he said the judge added.

Pelletier further stated the judge admitted he had personally advised Ulmer in the suit which was tried before the former district attorney. Ulmer was acquitted.

"I told the judge that Ulmer was guilty of fraud in his management of the conservatories," testified Pelletier. "The judge replied that, if I went after Ulmer, I would find him a hard man to fight."

Pelletier added that the judge stated he "had no influence over Ulmer" and could do nothing if Pelletier decided to take any action in the matter.

STARTED INQUIRY.

"I told the judge the reason Ulmer was freed by the court case," said Pelletier, "was because one of the jurors thought he was crazy. The juror told me that himself."

Pelletier said he very vociferously objected by Attorney Herbert Parker, of counsel for Pierce, but he did not change any of his story.

"I was asked to act as counsel for Mrs. Hand in 1919," said Pelletier. "I at once caused an investigation to be made into the affairs of the conservatories.

"I appointed Attorney William J. Shanahan to do the work. Later I talked with Judge Pierce and told him of the results of this investigation. He told me it was my duty to do so.

"I told the judge I was amazed at some of the things revealed by that investigation. I told him the heirs objected to Ulmer's acting and along with Ulmer and wanted him removed. They claimed the estate was being ruined under Ulmer's control.

"I also told him the heirs had been to Ulmer in an effort to straighten things out and Ulmer had advised them to see the Judge. The heirs claimed Ulmer informed them the judge was 'backing him.'

ROSES CITED.

"I also told the judge I had heard he was receiving roses from the conservatories and that he had ridden in Ulmer's limousine. I told him the heirs claimed they had been to see the judge and ask for an audit and that the judge had agreed an audit would be a good thing.

"This audit was made, I understand, but the heirs never got a report of it.

"I told the judge that there was ample reason for a receiver and the investigation showed Ulmer was guilty of a fraud. The judge then repeated: 'Well, you won't get a receiver here.'

"I then told Judge Pierce that 'I'm her hired the matter out of the hands of Ulmer and Parker.'

"Well, you'll have some job to break that trust," the judge then replied.

"The judge then asked me if I hadn't retained Ulmer for criminal libel. I said 'Yes.'

"Well, he got off,' Pierce then said.

"Yes,' I answered, 'if advised him in every move in that case, then stated to Judge.

"I then asked Judge Pierce to use his influence in getting Ulmer to agree to a receiver. The judge replied he had no influence with Ulmer.

Pelletier said he never got a cent for his legal services for Mrs. Hand.

BARRY ON STAND.

William J. Barry of Roslindale, counsel for Mrs. Hand in 1919, testified that he had been told by Judge Pierce about Ulmer's management of the conservatories' affairs. He said the judge told him he had tried to "get rid of him" (Barry).

"Later I saw Judge Pierce again, but he was still strong for Ulmer. He admitted, though, that he was in favor of an audit. A little later he told the if an audit wasn't made he would 'get through' with Ulmer.

"Three days after this I got through myself."

Letters telling of the judge's willingness to have an audit made and of Barry's dismissal as Mrs. Hand's counsel were read as evidence.

The question of admitting testimony aimed to show that the value of stock in the company had been destroyed through Ulmer's acts was taken under advisement.

SCHOONER FORD JUST LAUNCHED, IS WRECKED

Essex Racer, Aground on River Sandbar, Is Considered Total Loss

Essex, April 12.—The racing fishing schooner Henry Ford, which went aground off the mouth of the Essex River immediately after being launched, will probably be a total loss.

The Boston tug LeBarron H. Jenkins and the Gloucester tug Eveleth made an unsuccessful attempt to pull the stranded craft from the sandbar on which she is lodged. The schooner's keel is intact and she is full of water. During the night she shifted her position and drove even harder on the sandbar.

The Henry Ford was built for Captain Clayton Morrissey to compete for the opportunity of challenging for the International Fisherman's Cup, won by the Canadian schooner Bluenose last year.

The racer went aground while being towed to Gloucester.

SAYS PELLETIER DID NOT SUGGEST LETTER

Mrs. Mary A. Hand, former treasurer of the Henry Wood Sons Company, finished her testimony today in the trial before Judge Fosdick in the Superior Criminal Court of Attorney W. Edwin Ulmer, charged with having made a false return on the condition of the company to the Commissioner of Corporations in 1912.

The last question asked her by Attorney Ulmer in cross-examination was whether a letter she had mentioned having written him, protesting against a cut in her salary, had been suggested by former District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier.

"It was not," she declared.

JUDGES AID GUNMEN, IS 'SALLY' DOYLE'S CLAIM

MYSTERIOUS NOTE.

"Sell everything," were her orders.

Watertown police, following the "spooning" shooting, threw a guard around the house where the Sullivans maintained an apartment in an effort to intercept Sullivan. He was wanted, they said, in connection with the activities of Wilson and his gunmen associates. The guard was suddenly lifted after both Mrs. Sullivan and her husband had mysteriously vanished.

An attractive young woman who said she was Mrs. Gray, a sister-in-law of Mrs. Sullivan's, was superintending the stripping of the Sullivan apartment.

She said a note and the apartment key had been left at her doorstep in mysterious fashion shortly after midnight last night, requesting her to sell everything and apply the money on a debt owed by her by Joe Sullivan.

No effort was made by Watertown police to intercept the stripping of the house, although on Monday Mrs. Sullivan after a grilling admitted a visiting friend named "Mac" had taken dinner there with a man named "Eddie Saunders."

She denied "Saunders" was "Tug" Wilson and said she did not know Wilson. She could offer no explanation for the presence in her apartment of the blood-stained coat of three other coats and two sweaters. Where she has gone to Mrs. Gray refused to say.

HAD PROTECTION.

Wilson and his gang of terrorizers had police protection, it was charged today. Officers in the Boston, Somerville, Medford and other outlying departments are alleged to have been "bought up" by members of the gang.

They are alleged to have also had protection from high officials in a nearby city.

These charges, said to have been made in the first place by Miss Sarah Frances Doyle, the pretty nineteen-year-old Medford girl who was with Wilson when Patrolman Francis J. Philbrick was shot, were reiterated, it is alleged, by members of the underworld, who are threatening to "spill the beans," and tell all they know of the gang's secret arrangements for operating with impunity.

According to these charges judges and attorneys are allied with the gang and received regular "retainers for legal services." Other allegations assert that officials were compelled to aid the bandits through fear of blackmail.

The organization of these "aids to the gang" was Wilson's idea and developed by him, according to the statement made by "Sally" Doyle.

"BOUGHT" POLICE.

Other startling statements credited to the girl by investigators who have questioned her in her cell at the Cambridge jail are to the effect that the gang "bought police officers" by the presents of silk shirts and clothing stolen by the gang from freight cars and warehouses.

She also is said to have revealed the fact that the gang was carefully organized for all sorts of crime, from auto stealing to running crooked gambling games.

Bootlegging went hand in hand with burglary and holdups, according to the girl's statement.

Official notice of the situation from the Chief Executive of the state came on the heels of reports connecting "Sally" Doyle with Charles Gilley, an official of the office of State Registrar of Vehicles Goodwin.

Gilley, who is clerk in the office of the registrar, issued a statement explaining the incident in which he was stopped by Patrolman George Bird of the Charlestown police, while riding with "Sally" Doyle.

Patrolman Bird disclosed the fact that he himself, in the course of his duties, had spent much time in "Sally's" company, posing as a gunman in an effort to locate Earl Phillips Tuga Wilson.

The stories of Gilley and of the officer differ widely as to the incident.

COLE PROMISES PROBE.

Commissioner of Public Works John N. Cole today issued a statement regarding the mention of the name of Gilley in connection with that of Sally Doyle. The statement said:

"If the police of Boston or any other city or town discloses that the way implicates any employe or member of this department an investigation will be started at once. No such charge has been made. In fact the indications are that the report of the policeman published in the papers had been turned down by his own superior officer."

Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank G. Goodwin said that no official action would be taken on the report linking Gilley with the sweetheart of Wilson.

EXTENDS TO BACK BAY.

The revelation that the gang also used pretty girls for blackmail sent sleuths to sections of the Back Bay and South End previously unconsidered in connection with the case.

The East Cambridges courthouse was the busiest in years. Officers, State and municipal, from every city and town in Essex County flowed as a continuous stream in and out of the District Attorney's office.

Accompanied by his pretty wife, Harold Smith, proprietor of a gasoline-filling station on the Medford Boulevard, visited the East Cambridge jail and identified "Tug" Wilson as one of the bandits who held up the station on the night of December 27 and robbed him of $10. He picked Wilson out in a line of seven prisoners.

HEAR APPEALS FOR JENNIE ZIMMERMAN

Governor's Council Defers Action on Case of Girl Now in Asylum

The fate of Jennie Zimmerman Springfield girl, who was committed to the Danvers Insane Hospital for the insane following her trial for the murder of her cousin, Henry Zimmerman, was placed in the hands of the Governor's Council to day.

The entire council, headed by Lieutenant-Governor Alvan T. Fuller, sat for nearly two hours in the council chamber at the State House and heard a number of witnesses, including doctors, lawyers and friends of the girl, plead that she be given her freedom.

After hearing the evidence the council voted to defer action until a later date.

"Jennie Zimmerman is not insane," she manifests no delusions of persecution, her memory is intact, and there is no evidence of mental disease at present. There is no reason to believe that, if released, she would be a menace to society, or that she would even be potentially dangerous."

This statement was made to the councillors by Dr. George M. Cline, commissioner of the State Department of Mental Diseases.

LAWYER REVIEWS CASE.

"I can find no signs of insanity whatever in Jennie Zimmerman."

This came from Dr. John A. Houston, superintendent of the Northampton State Hospital, where she is now confined.

Attorney William G. McKechnie, who defended the girl during her trial two years ago, and who has interested himself in her case ever since, gave a vivid resume of the events in her life that led up to the shooting of Dr. Zimmerman.

He described the manner in which she had been obliged to bear the burden of supporting her family, consisting of several brothers and sisters and a father and mother, the latter a victim of fits of insanity.

Dr. Zimmerman, McKechnie said, had taken advantage of the girl's youth and inexperience to drug and attack her while she was in his office. Through the hold that he thus obtained over her, the attorney continued, he compelled her to be subservient to his desires for two years.

"When the war came, and this man joined the medical corps, Jennie Zimmerman, poor as she was, bought him a uniform," he declared.

"When he returned from the war he entered a new and higher world, from which he sought to exclude Jennie, who pressed him to marry her. He refused. Twice she tried suicide. When she continued in her pleas that he marry her and right the wrong he had done her, he threatened to put her in the insane asylum.

"She met him by accident on the street, invited him to dine with her. Again she asked him to help her, and against he refused. She drew the gun and fired every chamber into his body. Then she fainted."

FAVORED ACQUITTAL.

McKechnie declared that "99 per cent. of the people of Springfield and Western Massachusetts would favor her release without trial." He added that during the jury deliberations at her trial the veniremen stood eleven to one for acquittal and a compromise verdict of insanity was agreed upon.

"If you allow her to go free you will do a plain, obvious act of justice to an outraged girl."

The Rev. Moses L. Sedar, Jewish chaplain at the asylum, begged for the release of Jennie Zimmerman. She has improved mentally, morally and spiritually since her confinement, Miss Minnie Brown, a Hearst newspaper woman, declared that her parents would welcome the girl a home if she were freed.

A number of ladies from Springfield also appeared without trial. Among the other pleaders for a parole were Assistant District Attorney A. C. Wohlfarth, who said a compromise verdict of insanity was agreed upon.

Belfast, April 12.—It is reported from Fermanagh that fresh concentrations of Irish Republican troops have arrived on the Ulster frontier. Reinforcements of Ulster constables in armored cars have left for the border.

Dublin, April 12.—That the Republicans are doubtful of the success of the truce conference as indicated today by the fact they continued their warlike preparations. Sandbag barricades were erected in the streets where Republicans' strongholds are located and houses were turned into fortresses.

Arthur Griffith, President of the Dail Eireann, will be one of the Irish Free State delegates. He said the preliminary arrangements for the meeting were being completed and that he hoped it would convene tomorrow.

Michael Collins and Arthur Griffith of the Irish Provisional Government are anxious for a settlement with the minimum action of the Irish Republican army, but Eamon De Valera, leader of the Republicans, is inclined to be obstinate, according to the views outlined by Irish Free State chieftains.

"I am hopeful that an agreement will be reached which will end all the difficulties," said the Lord Mayor of Dublin today.

North Parliament Passes Criminal Bill

Belfast, April 12.—The criminal procedure bill passed all the remaining stages in the Northern Parliament today. Mr. McGuffin, one of the members, urged a postponement in the passage of the bill, declaring there were rumors of possible grave troubles within the next few days. H. N. Pollock minister of finance, replying for the government, declared action on the bill must proceed, even if it were only for the purpose of keeping faith with regard to the agreement between the northern and southern governments.

Declare Truce on Ulster Border

Belfast, April 12 (By the Associated Press).—A truce has been declared between the Ulster special constables and the Free State troops which have been in menacing proximity along the Fermanagh border between Ulster and South Ireland.

The pact does not bind the supporters of Eamon De Valera, who are massing on the shores of Lough Levin, near the town of Garrison, where they store arms and ammunition and are keeping watch on the speedy Italian motor cars brought reinforcements for the Republicans.

YOUNG GIRLS NEED CARE

Mothers, Watch Your Daughters' Health

Health Is Happiness

From the time a girl reaches the age of twelve until womanhood is established, she needs all the care a thoughtful mother can give.

The condition that the girl is then passing through is so critical, and may have such far-reaching effects upon her future happiness and health, that it is almost criminal for a mother or guardian to withhold counsel or advice.

Many a woman has suffered years of prolonged pain and misery through having been the victim of thoughtlessness or ignorance on the part of those who should have guided her through the dangers and difficulties that beset this period.

Mothers should teach their girls what danger comes from standing around with cold or wet feet, from lifting heavy articles, and from overworking. Do not let them overstudy. If they complain of headache, pains in the back and lower limbs, they need a mother's thoughtful care and sympathy.

A Household Word in Mother's House

writes Mrs. Lynd, about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"My mother gave me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and when I was 14 years old for troubles girls often have and for loss of weight. Then after I married I took the Vegetable Compound before each child was born and always when I felt the least run-down.

Both my sister and sister-in-law take it and have only the highest praise for it. It has been a household word in my mother's house for years."—Mrs. KATHRYN LYND, 2461 Gladys Ave., Chicago, Ill.

A Little Book Helped Her to Decide

Milwaukee, Wis.—"My daughter took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as she was so weak and did not feel like going to school. She was like that for a whole year before taking your Vegetable Compound. I found a little book of yours in our mail-box and decided to give her your medicine. She is now strong and well and attends school every day. We recommend your Vegetable Compound to all mothers with weak daughters. You may use this letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. E. KUCZNY, 917 20th Ave., Milwaukee, Wis.

"I was always feeling tired and sleepy, was losing in weight and would faint at times. I had other troubles too, that made me feel badly. I read your little books and heard friends talk about the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done them, so I have taken it too. The results are most satisfactory, for I have gained in weight and my bad symptoms are gone. I recommend your Vegetable Compound to all my friends and you may make whatever use you like of this letter."—GLORIA RAMIREZ, 1116 9th Ave., Tampa, Fla.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent you free upon request. Write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts. This book contains valuable information.

Fresh From Paris

Latest From Marie Suzanne

Paris, France.

TRUE beaded embroidery that Paris insists on, in spite of all reports to the contrary, is here in white Sultanese pearls on black crepe de chine. Oddly enough, the dress that is unbelted at the front has a crushed girdle of self material across the back, from which over one hip, is draped a widening panel, heavily embroidered.

BLACK taffeta embroidered with white circles is made into a gown that achieves its bouffancy from an apronlike panel attached at the front of the skirt. The collar and the sleeves are decidedly in the same billowy spirit.

BOY, 4, SENT BY MAIL, SAYS DAD; 'NO,' SAYS P. O.

Was a four year old boy mailed by parcel post from Boston to Rockland, Me?

His father, Bertie Brodis, of the Maine city says he was, and is suing his wife for divorce in consequence.

Postal officials here deny it, and declare that such a thing would be a gross violation of postal regulations.

Brodis has asked the court to grant him his freedom on the ground that his wife sent their four year old son by "mail" from Rockland, denied Brodis' appeal on account of a technical error in the papers in the suit.

Charles I. Hammond, superintendent of the division of mails at the local central post office today characterized the report as "preposterous."

"It's nothing but a huge joke," said Hammond. "We accept live chickens and bees for mail transportation, but children—never! It would be a gross infraction of regulations and as such would be called promptly to the attention of the postal authorities. We have no record of any such case."

"Baby alligators have been mailed via parcel post—but baby boys—not in a hundred years."

EDISON COSTS EXCEED OTHER PLANTS

Expenses 500 Per Cent. Higher Than in Tacoma, Attorney MacFarland Says

That the operating and maintenance expenses of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company for every kilowatt hour of electricity are 500 per cent. larger than in Tacoma and from 15 to 295 per cent. greater than scores of other cities, was today asserted by Attorney Grenville S. MacFarland of the Boston American at the rate hearing before the State Department of Public Utilities.

Mr. MacFarland said a computation had been completed of the operating and maintenance cost of every kilowatt hour of electricity produced by the Edison. He said also that figures had been completed of the cost per kilowatt hour in other communities in every other section of the country.

For reasons of comparison, some of the electric lighting plants were public plants, others were private institutions. Some of the plants were larger and did more business. Others were smaller and did a less volume of business.

The amount charged by the Edison for operating and maintenance expenses, he said, was 46 per cent. greater than Fall River, 72 per cent. greater than Salem, 53 per cent. greater than Springfield, 45 per cent. greater than Worcester, 159 per cent. greater than Baltimore, 295 per cent. greater than Buffalo, 82 per cent. greater than the municipal and 183 per cent. greater than the private plant in Cleveland, 193 per cent. greater than in Detroit, 98 per cent. greater than Philadelphia and 22 per cent. greater than New York.

He asked Richard S. Hale, superintendent of research for the Edison, to describe the conditions which would cause the cost to be so much greater then Boston.

Mr. Hale said that, assuming the same allocations were made, some cities have waterpower, some buy coal cheaper, in some the load factor is better and that in Cleveland the area served is smaller.

"The other day you agreed that the area didn't signify anything?" said Mr. MacFarland.

"Yes, I did," said Mr. Hale.

Mr. MacFarland asked Mr. Hale if the conditions he described as being different in any of the cities as compared with Boston would make up the entire difference in costs? Mr. Hale said they would not.

INJUNCTION ON BABY HYCIENE PERIODICA...3

Judge Sisk, in the Superior Court today, issued an injunction restraining C. A. Gray and others from issuing any baby hygiene periodicals under names which will lead the public to believe that they are published by the Baby Hygiene Association and other similar charitable organizations. The injunction, which was agreed to by the respondents, specifically mentions as being barred the names, "National Hygiene Magazine," "American Infant Hygiene Magazine," "National Baby Hygiene Magazine." Gray is also enjoined against selling any magazines by any means which would confuse the public and lead purchasers to believe that any portion of the purchase price was to go to charity.

Says Hot Dogs Make as Good Pets as Any Other Kind as Long as You Don't Get Too Hungry

The hot dog kennels at Coney Island are busy preparing their entries for the frankfurter show this Summer.

All Winter the society people have been showing their canines between Newport and San Francisco, and it will soon be time for the working class to be showing their dogs between two pieces of bread.

At Washington a person must have a pedigree with every dog they buy, but at Coney Island they demand mustard.

Irving Ackerman refused a thousand dollars for his Irish terrier at Pasadena, but at Atlantic City you can buy all the wire-haired frankfurters you want for a dime.

At the dog show they sleep on cushions, but at the lunch counters they rest on sauerkraut.

Hot dogs make as good pets as any kind if you don't get too hungry.

One techilly wille dogs which are so tough that he must have had them since they were pups.

Some of these dogs are beautifully marked, especially when they're sprinkled with salt and pepper.

Instead of toting them on a leash, you lead them around on a fork.

They don't require any kennel. The only doghouse you need is a roll cut in half.

The dog will lie there quietly until your appetite disturbs him.

He's no particular breed when you only use, for as a chow dog as soon as you get hungry.

Of course some of them are so little that they're like an Airedale A one-man dog.

No dog can serve two masters, especially the size of the ones you get at Coney Island.

They make splendid watch dogs. They give you indigestion and keep you awake all night, and no burglar will break into your house while you're not sleeping.

One woman told a peddler that her dog didn't agree with her, but the peddler couldn't know she'd eaten a frankfurter.

When a society man buys a dog he expects to get a cup with it. When a working man buys one he wants a cup, too, only he wants his filled with coffee.

GALLIVAN HITS AT RUM NAVY ADMIRALS

Protests Putting Wheeler in Class With Farragut and Dewey

Washington, April 12.—Naval tradition of the future will tell aspiring young officers and men of "the rum navy" how "Admiral Haynes lashed himself to the mast crying 'Damn the rum runners, go ahead.'"

Such at least is the opinion of Representative Gallivan of Massachusetts.

In a sarcastic address during the debate on the naval appropriations bill, Mr. Gallivan said he fears "a blue jacket will be a rare bird on the Atlantic if the Prohibitionists have their way.

"Some of the gentlemen who are so enthusiastic about scrapping the navy that defends the whole country are looking on complacently while Congress votes millions for the organization of another navy—a navy to fight for one particular factional issue.

"The rum running navy bids fair to usurp the place of the real navy because you will not dare refuse its requests for further millions whenever they are asked.

"I am reminded that more than 100 years ago President Monroe negotiated a treaty with Great Britain by which all fortifications on both sides of the border between this country and Canada should be scrapped and no war ships of either power allowed on the Great Lakes.

"But the rum navy, under the command of 'Admiral' Haynes and 'Rear-Admiral' Wayne B. Wheeler, and supported by gentlemen ready to scrap the navy of Jack Barry, John Paul Jones, Farragut and Dewey, will violate that treaty of 100 years standing.

"Instead of grog the bluejackets of the rum runners will get a ration of grapejuice to aid the white-ribbon boys fight rum runners."

Balks 11th Raid as He Gets Burglar in Bear Trap

Williamsburg, N. Y., April 12—John Cogan, electrical contractor, caught his own burglar. Cogan's home had been robbed ten times before the capture. So he set a bear trap, a big, old-fashioned affair that he had oiled well.

When the burglar came through the window, left unfastened by Cogan, the jaws snapped.

Clutched by the teeth, badly frightened and a little hurt, was John Rosso, who was taken to the police station to await arraignment for burglary.

FREIGHTER GYP DISABLED 140 MILES AT SEA

Steamer's Plight Reported by Furness Liner Reaching Boston

The British freighter Gyp, bound from Lowery, England, to Boston is disabled 140 miles off the coast, according to word brought here today by the Furness freight steamer Rhode Island, just in from Glasgow.

Captain H. Fairclough of the Furness line reported sighting the disabled craft while making port. No signals of distress were displayed and so the Rhode Island kept on. It was believed the Gyp was being hove to pending repairs by the crew.

Efforts were made to reach the ship by radio. The vessel is bringing a cargo of China clay.

INVALID VETERANS TO GET POTTED FLOWERS

In order that hundreds of war veterans now confined in Boston hospitals may enjoy Easter Sunday, Mayor Curley today ordered the Park Department to send to each patient a potted flower.

McNARY'S PLEA FOR BANK PROBE IS REJECTED

Committee Rules Allen Hearing Before the Governor's Council Was Sufficient

The demand made by Treasurer William S. McNary of the closed Hanover Trust Company for a wide spread and thorough investigation of the closing and liquidation of the five closed Boston trust companies was today turned down by the Committee on Banks and Banking.

McNary had asserted at the public hearing before the committee that the Hanover was solvent when closed by Bank Commissioner Joseph C. Allen. He charged that Allen was setting up a banking class, which included only the Boston aristocracy and excluded the men who sprung from humble places in the community.

Simon Swig of the closed Tremont Trust Company and John J. Dixon, speaking for a committee of depositors, had joined in the demand for a sweeping probe, the latter asserting that the banks were being deliberately wrecked in the process of liquidation.

Members of the committee were said to feel today that the hearing before the Governor's Council on the question of confirming Allen's reappointment to a three-year term had given the closed bank officials plenty of opportunity to air their grievances. Following that hearing, Allen was confirmed by unanimous vote of the Council.

'ARISTOCRACY OF BRAINS' PROPOSED FOR BRITAIN

London, April 12 (by Associated Press).—An endeavor to substitute "an aristocracy of brains for an aristocracy of birth," is embodied in a bill for the reconstruction of the House of Lords which Colonel Claude Lowther today obtained permission of the Commons to present. It provides for a reduction in the number of the Upper House from 720 to 300, apart from princes of the blood.

OPEN PASSOVER OBSERVANCE TONIGHT

Festival Celebrates Deliverance of Jews From Slavery in Egypt

Tonight will be "Sedar Night," the first of the annual Jewish holiday of Peach or Passover.

All over the world Hebrew families will gather for the observance of the ancient religious and historical customs.

The festival, celebrating primarily the deliverance of the Jews from the slavery in which they were held in ancient Egypt, will last seven or eight days, depending upon the interpretation placed upon the words of the biblical injunction in Exodus 23:14.

During the period all orthodox Jews will abstain from all leaven, and matzoth will take the place of bread.

The first and last days of the festival are days of holy convocation, on which special services are held in the synagogues.

Tonight is the most important of the holiday. It is then that the ritual known as the Haggadah is read to the family around the dinner table.

This Haggadah tells in song and story of the deliverance of the Jews from bondage in Egypt and of their flight across the Red Sea under the leadership of Moses.

The Passover feast is keyed to that fundamental idea of deliverance from slavery and liberty from bigotry, ignorance and oppression.

The conference of American Rabbis is at work on a revision of the Haggadah designed to bring more forcibly to the minds of American Jews the high purpose of this feast.

ORDERS MUSIC TO BRIGHTEN UP COURT

San Francisco, April 12.—Old melodies will be tried out to dispel from his court what Police Judge Lazarus termed "the customary air of resentment and hatred." He got his idea when a phonograph, which a detective said was stolen, was brought into court and "Ben Bolt" was played during the trial of a drunken man. Judge Lazarus said some selections "might soften our hearts too much."

U. S. Owes 23 Times as Much Money as in 1917

Chicago, April 12.—The United States owes twenty-three times as much money now as in 1917, when the public debt was about one billion dollars, Eliot Wadsworth, assistant secretary of the treasury, declared in a speech here.

"This huge debt we must pass on to the future citizens," he said. "So it is the intention of government financial leaders to pay all new debts from current funds. We are just standing still financially. Our expenses this year just about equalled our revenue."

580 CIVIL WAR VETERANS OF G. A. R. MEET

PICTURES ON PICTORIAL PAGE.

Despite the fact that 743 members of the Grand Army of the Republic in this State have passed away during the past year, Massachusetts still remains near the top of all States in the Union in point of membership.

This was revealed by speakers at the fifty-sixth annual encampment of the Massachusetts G. A. R. in Faneuil Hall.

Among the 580 delegates who assembled for the meeting—an unexpectedly large number, incidentally—was Charles B. Yeaton, back renewing old friendships which were made sixty years ago on Southern battlefields.

While the veterans were meeting in Faneuil Hall the annual meeting of the Sons of Veterans was being held in Lorimer Hall. Governor Cox and Mayor Curley addressed this gathering and Division Commander Fred E. Upham, in his annual report, sounded a vigorous plea for Americanism.

BANDIT SIEGE IS ENDED BY TEAR GAS

Detroit Police Force It Through Keyhole, and Band of 7 Surrender

Detroit, April 12.—Police armed with shotguns brought the five-hour siege of the apartment at No. 434 Charlotte street to an end today when they pumped tear gas through the keyhole of the door, forcing five men and two women, all heavily armed, to beg for mercy and lay down their weapons.

Those under arrest are Earl Van Sickle, 25 years old, and his wife, Sarah, 22 years old, and Ethel Goodfriend, all of No. 436 Charlotte street; Stanley Bishop, 23 years old; Isidore Willis, Stanley Goldberg and Sam Gildizione.

A tip was received at police headquarters that two of the suspects wanted in connection with the robbery of Wanita Landers and Wanda Phair last Sunday were in the apartment.

Inspector Good and a squad of police hastened to the place and attempted to gain admittance. They were warned to keep out or take the consequences.

Good thrust his card under the door. The gang inside cursed him and threatened to shoot. A call was sent to headquarters for tear gas.

The bandits were warned the gas would be used. The warning was received with jeers, changing to cries for mercy when the powerful suffocant was poured through the keyhole.

The men and women piled their guns on a table in the room and throwing open the door stood with uplifted hands while the officers handcuffed them.

Mentho-Sulphur heals eczema right up, leaving the skin clear and smooth. It seldom fails to relieve the torment or disfigurement. A little jar of Mentho-Sulphur may be obtained at any drug store. It is used like cold cream.—Advertisement.

LOVE CAREER OF WIFE IS REVEALED

Planned to Wed Student, She Is Being Sought as Bigamist

Where is Delia Rose Brown-Bird-Bracy-Robinson, whose love career with three husbands has become the object of interest to the Boston police since the annulment of her union with Paul F. Robinson, garage owner of Brookline?

The tea room she opened and ran on Jersey street, Back Bay, was closed suddenly and never has been reopened. The woman's flat on Huntington avenue is also closed. She vanished leaving behind a disillusioned medical student of Tufts College, a light-hearted ex-husband, the garage proprietor, and a police force anxious to serve a bigamy warrant.

According to the story told to the Boston American by Robinson today, Mrs. Bracy's marital career began when she was a young girl, and became the wife of a young man who died after two children had been born to the couple.

READY TO WED STUDENT.

Then, according to the ex-husband Mrs Bracy began flitting, butterfly-like from husband to husband. She was all ready to proceed with a fourth marriage with the Tufts Medical College student when senior classmen intervened.

"I married the woman in December, 1917," said Robinson. "We lived together until November, 1920, when I found out that she was married and had been married when she became my wife.

She was born in Willimantic, Ct. The name of her first husband was Bird.

HAS TWO CHILDREN.

"His two children are now seventeen and sixteen, respectively. She is about thirty-four and I am twenty-eight.

"After our marriage we went to live on Huntington avenue, where I had a flat. Later I decided to go to Willimantic to establish a garage business. She stayed in the apartment until the lease ran out.

"When I came back to Boston I discovered through friends that the woman I thought my legal wife had not been divorced from Bracy when we were married.

"I also found out that she had engaged herself to this Tufts medical student and that he had even bought the ring and had her own and his initials engraved. That marriage never took place.

MAY FEAR ARREST.

"Just why she left her Jersey street tea room so suddenly I don't know, unless it was that she found out the police had a warrant for her arrest.

"Personally I have all I want, my freedom. The law can deal with her as it sees fit without any aid from me."

London, April 12.—Cecil Harmsworth, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, today in the House of Commons denied the charge that British military authorities in Egypt had been guilty of atrocities upon the Egyptian nationalists.

The descending curve of "Fatigue Charts" like this is a startling proof of how fatigue limits action

Mental work alone—any amount of it—has little effect on quick, clear thinking —and yet so many men come home at night exhausted—too tired to think of anything but sleep

The brain is tireless— but the body weakens

Science now explains the true nature of fatigue

Recent tests, to find how much work the human brain is really capable of, have yielded some surprising results.

So far as can be told, the brain itself is practically tireless. Mental work alone—any amount of it—has little effect on quick, clear thinking.

The trouble is that the body gets tired so soon. It develops actual fatigue-poisons, which clog the tissues and block the nerve-pathway that carries the brain's message.

Hour by hour these poisons accumulate. And little by little the output of work lessens—the "work-curve" begins to fall.

This is why the problem of fatigue is a problem which concerns every human being. Whether we work with hand or brain, fatigue is the enemy of us all.

We can't change the conditions under which we live. We can't slow up the lightning pace of 20th Century civilization. But we can avoid exposing body and brain to needless shock and strain.

Get the right protection!

One of the chief causes of fatigue is the strain of standing—the jar of walking on hard floors and pavements.

Of course, hard leather heels give no relief. Ordinary rubber heels are little better. Some are soft, crumbly rubber that wears down quickly—others are so hard and lifeless that you might as well wear leather.

O'Sullivan's Safety Cushion Heels give you perfect protection. They combine just the right toughness for long, hard wear with the greatest amount of springiness.

Hard, nail-studded leather heels cannot protect you

Ordinary rubber heels—either too hard or too soft

O'Sullivan's Safety Cushion Heels are tough and springy

The price of O'Sullivan's to you is generally the same as the price of ordinary heels, in spite of the fact that O'Sullivan's cost the dealer more. Your repairman could make a bigger immediate profit on any one of half a dozen substitutes—but when he puts on O'Sullivan's, he knows you'll bring trade to him again.

Ask for O'Sullivan's Safety Cushion when you leave your shoes—see that they are attached. The O'Sullivan Heel Company.

LAYS HER SON'S SUICIDE TO OVERSTUDY

Broderick's Mother in Back Bay Says Youth Suffered Nervous Breakdown

Overstudy and nervous breakdown that followed, according to his mother, caused the suicide of Ralph W. Broderick, Columbia University student and son of Mrs. Marion E. Broderick of No. 226 Hemenway street, Back Bay.

The boy's body was found floating in the waters of the Upper Bay in New York by a government tug.

Broderick disappeared from his boarding place in New York last December. His father, Dr. F. W. Broderick, now practicing in Sterling, Ill., formerly a lieutenant-colonel in the Army Medical Corps, went on to New York at the time and exhausted every effort to find the young man.

His mother is suffering from the shock of disappointment and grief, for she confidently expected that her son would return or be found alive.

"Ralph broke down from overstudy," she declared today. "The previous time I saw him was just after last Thanksgiving Day. At that time I was worried about his health, as it seemed plain he was overworking. That and the nervous breakdown that must have followed is the only cause I can give for his act."

Before entering Columbia, the young man was a student at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology from 1916 to 1919.

HOUSE IS BLOWN UP AND COAL MINER SHOT

4 Arrested in Attack on West Virginia Workers; Bloodhounds on Trail

Charleston, W. Va., April 12.—Wounding of a non-union miner in an ambuscade and the destruction of the home of another by dynamite claimed attention of West Virginia police and Raleigh County authorities today.

Four men were arrested today on suspicion of being implicated in the shooting, which occurred near Oswald, in Raleigh County.

Half a dozen non-union miners employed by the McKell Coal and Coke Company, while returning from a revival at Mt. Hope, were fired on. One was hit in the back.

Eight State troopers under Corporal Reynolds investigated the affair today and brought in George Chelick, Mick Gardo, Jake Warden and Lee Tredway.

The dynamiting occured today in Sylvia, Raleigh County, when the home of Joseph Penn, negro non-union miner, was destroyed by a charge, apparently placed on the window sill. No one was hurt.

The sheriff of Raleigh County immediately placed bloodhounds on the scent and latest reports were that a hot trail was being followed.

2 More Frick Mines Closed by Strikers

By Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, April 12.—Two more plants of the H. C. Frick Coke Company were closed today by the United Mine Workers in their campaign to carry the coal strike into the Connellsville region.

The important Leisenring and Trotter plants, employing 2,000 miners and coke workers, were in operation with what the management termed an increased force.

The mines closed were Colonial No. 1 and Oliphant.

Beck Accuses Coal Men of Profiteering

Washington, April 12.—Charging that the public is being subjected to "outrageous profiteering" at the hands of coal operators, Representative Beck, republican, of Wisconsin appeared today before the House Labor Committee.

He demanded Congress take action to throw open to public inspection all the income and excess profits taxes of coal operators and dealers.

This would reveal, Beck said, the extortionate profits made by operators and dealers.

PROBE BOY'S DEATH IN MUNICIPAL HOSPITAL

Philadelphia, April 12.—An investigation was underway today by city health authorities of the death from diphtheria of Minnie Hepsel, twelve years old. The child died in the Municipal Hospital for contagious diseases and it is alleged that he did not receive proper treatment.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON BOSTON SOCIETY

Hasty Pudding Club Show Holds Interest of Elite

By BETTY ALDEN.

THE smart set is no end interested in "It's Only Natural," the musical comedy being put on by the Hasty Pudding Club this week. Which interest is "only natural," for the membership scroll of the Hasty Pudding is adorned with the most distinguished of cognomens.

The first performance—for undergraduates only—will be given tomorrow evening at the Hasty Pudding clubhouse in Cambridge, while on Friday and Saturday evenings the performances, to be given at the same place, will be open to the public. Next week Manager Benjamin Currier will take his "company" "on the road," when the play will be presented in Philadelphia on Tuesday evening, and in New York on Thursday and Friday evenings in the ballroom of the Hotel Plaza. Then, back again to Boston for the engagement at the Plymouth Theatre on April 26, 27 and 28.

Boston is to have a distinct representation in the show, especially among the fair "chorines."

In the group are John S. Amory, son of Mrs. Harcourt Amory of Beacon street, and John Tisdale Bradlee and Paul Warren Putnam of Brookline.

To Joseph Larocque Jr.—brother of Mrs. Charles R. Codman of Beacon street—has been allotted the role of "Evangeline Burroughs," heorine of the play and fiance of "Archie Carr," who will be played by Warner Johnson Banes. Russell Robb, Jr., son of the Russell Robbs of Concord, is said to be the prettiest "deb" of the show, though quite a few of the boys are being transformed for the occasion into bewitching damsels with the most bewildering cleverness.

Others taking part are Charles Bedell Monroe of Pittsburgh, Joseph Alger, Jr., of Brockton, Francis Brewster Tanssig of New York, James Moynahan of Mattapan, John Allen of Marlboro, Norman P. Davis of New York, Duncan Dunscombe and Herbert Lee Pratt, both also of New York, Grosvenor White of Nutley, N. J.; John Bryant Jaime, Jr., of Weston, John MacDuffie, 2nd, of New York, James Robbins Reynolds of Readville, Ridley Watts, Jr., of Morristown, N. J., Richard Pullen Field of Milford, Benjamin Appleton Hunneman of Brookline, and Singleton Peabody Moorehead of Andover.

The authors of the play are William Chapin Jackson of Darien, Ct., and Robert Cameron of Cambridge, who were assisted by Edgar Scott of Landsdowne, Pa., a '20 man and now in the Graduate School. The music is the work of Howard Elliot, Jr., of New York, formerly of Boston; Alexander Lang Steinert, Jr., of Boston, Joseph Alger and Singleton Peabody Moorehead.

Mention of the Hasty Pudding show brings to mind "Now and Then," the musical comedy which the Vincent Club is giving the last week of the month, when the club will share the Plymouth Theatre with the Hasty Pudding men.

Isabel Boardman, daughter of the Edwin A. Boardmans of Beacon street and the North Shore, will sing and dance in the chorus of "Now and Then." Miss Boardman, who made her debut last year I believe, will have as some of her fellow-"chorine" the Misses Helen Scott, Jeannie Dupee, Alice Thomas, Theresa Winsor, Mary Chute, Ellen Greenough, Mary Hallowell, Margaret Houghton, Eleanor Musgrave, Alice Onderdonk, Edith and Frances Sturgis and Leonora Trafford—the latter all of this season's buds—and also Mrs. Harrison O. Apthorp and the Misses Sarah Anthony, Eleanor Batchelder, Madeline Bemis, Elizabeth Clark, Ruth Graves, Barbara Register and Mary Wheelwright.

Which reminds me that while attending the performance of "Why Not," the clever "melodiyrama"—as it was called—given recently by society folk, I sat in the row just in front of two of the buds mentioned above. As the show came to a close, with the audience's indelible stamp of approval, the two girls rose, and I heard one say to the other, "Well, we'll have to 'go some' to make our show as much of a success."

But those who know the Vincent Club shows are convinced that the girls will make "Now and Then" as much of a success as all the club's other shows have been—which is saying quite a bit.

Betty Alden

Miss Isabel Boardman of Beacon street, who will take part in the musical comedy, "Now and Then," to be presented by the Vincent Club the last week of the month, when the club will share the Plymouth Theare with the Hasty Pudding Club for the latter's presentation of "It's Only Natural."

FITZGERALD MAKES PLEA FOR TRADE CONVENTION

Charging that the failure of the local Chamber of Commerce ever to extend an invitation to the Foreign Trade Convention to meet in Boston is "almost criminal neglience," former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald urged members of the Kiwanis Club to work towards having such an invitation proffered this year.

The ex-mayor pointed out that cities such as Cleveland, Cincinnati and Pittsburg, many miles from the ocean, have had the convention, but that it has never even been asked to convene in Boston an ocean port.

SCULPTRESS TO WED AT BIG EXPOSITION

Miss Meriam E. Ball Will Become Bride at Home Beautiful Exhibit

Miss Meriam E. Ball of Swampscott, prominent young sculptress and members of the Society of Arts and Crafts, who is to be married on the stage at the Home Beautiful Exposition in Mechanics Building next week, has recently completed a portrait bust of her prospective husband, Russell Babcock Palmer, of Utica, N. Y.

The bust is a splendid likeness of Palmer and is declared by critics to be the best piece of work done by Miss Ball since she was graduated from the Massachusetts Normal Art School, where she studied under Cyrus Dallin, the famous sculptor.

Arrangements have been made to have the bust on exhibition at Mechanics Building during the two weeks of the exposition, which opens on Saturday evening.

Arrangements for the wedding, which is to take place on Friday evening of next week, have been completed. Miss Ball is to be attended by a young woman who studied with her at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts School. Following the ceremony the party will be the guest of Chester I. Campbell, general manager of the exposition, at a wedding supper in the Hotel Lenox.

FLAG DEDICATION IN SOUTH END, APRIL 19

Members of the various veterans' military organizations, donors of a new flagpole and flag, will dedicate the flag and the pole at the Old Franklin Schoolhouse, No. 1151 Washington street, South End, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of April 19.

CRAIG HAS NEW PLAY ALMOST READY

Mary Young Hid His Books and Forced Him to Go to Work

By F. J. McISAAC

"John," said Mary Young, "you've read enough. The next ten years in your life you should do big things. Go to work."

John Craig laughed in his good-natured way, but as soon as he was out Mary Young called in a carpenter and boxed up his library. Thirty-seven big boxes of books she sent to the storage warehouse, and then she told the receipt.

Miss Young was chatting for a few moments behind the scenes of "Way Girls" at the Arlington, and the conversation, as it usually does when you are talking with her, turned on her husband.

STUNT FAILED.

Incidentally, when you are talking to John, be sure about Mary.

"How did the library stunt work?" I asked her.

"It didn't," said Mary Young. "He just went out and bought more books. He has nearly as many now as those I stored. And they are mostly duplicates, which makes it worse.

"It did some good," she added. "He has had several plays in his mind and he went to work on them. One or two are about ready for production. Don't you love this little play? It's a trifle but it's very entertaining and the part I am playing amuses me tremendously."

"What have you been doing since you were in Boston?"

HAD FUN IN PARIS.

"Well, I had a lot of fun in Paris last Summer appearing in Hackett's production of 'Macbeth.' That was most unusual, doing Shakespeare in English in the French capital. Nearly everybody of prominence in the theatrical world of London and America who happened to be in France volunteered to play one of the parts, just for the experience. I understudied Lady Macbeth and played Lady McDuff. We had a lot of celebrated authors and playwrights going on as extras in the mob scenes and we had the most gorgeous times.

"Paris liked Hackett's 'Macbeth' very much. I did myself. And it was a stunning production."

WEST END GIRL TO BE BRIDE OF WHELTON

On Patriot's Day, April 19, Miss Lillian C. Goodwin of No. 19 Charles street will become the bride of Francis H. Whelton, World War hero, decorated by Marshal Foch, and son of former Mayor Daniel C. Whelton. The ceremony will be solemnized in St. Joseph's Church, West End, by Father McCormack. Miss Anna Whelton, sister of the bridegroom, will be maid of honor and Dr. Louis Walsh, best man.

RETIRED MERCHANT, 70, TO WED SECRETARY, 52

A. Lincoln Caldwell, seventy-year-old retired business man, of No. 72 Robinwood avenue, Jamaica Plain, is to wed his secretary, Miss Abbie K. Bride, fifty-two years old, of No. 1775 Massachusetts avenue, in a week. The acquaintanceship began in business years ago.

PAVLOWA GIVES A REMARKABLE PERFORMANCE

Introduces Several New Ballet Numbers at the Boston Opera House

By FRED J. McISAAC.

Anna Pavlowa and her ballet gave a remarkably attractive performance at the Boston Opera House last night. The program consisted of the ballet "Amarilla," the ballet "Dionysius," and a set of divertissements, which included "The Dance of the Hours," from "Gioconda."

"Dionysus" is a new ballet. It is set to music by Tcherepnine, and arranged by Chastine. The argument is rather uninteresting, being the worship of the statue of the god Dionysius by his high priestess and a good looking lot of lady assistants. Finally the god comes to life and engages in the ancient Greek equivalent of a fox trot with the priestess, who is none other than our old friend Pavlowa.

At the instant of the transformation the scene changes from a rocky grotto with a general color scheme of brick red to a heavenly spot in Urban blue. And the whole thing is done by light effects only, without the disarrangement of a piece of scenery. This is the intention of Nicholas de Lipsky, who had a transformation scene in the "Greenwich Village Follies," also.

Pavlowa, herself, never danced better and her big troupe was never displayed to better advantage. The lady did a lot more work than she has been doing on recent visits to Boston, appearing as the prima ballerina in each of the ballets and personally turning up in two of the seven divertisements. The Dying Swan, as usual, brought down the house and the applause continued no less than ten minutes at the end of that number.

Pavlowa appears this afternoon and evening in two different programs.

CHILD DANCERS TO APPEAR AT BALL

"Baby" Josephine Leonard of South Boston and "Baby" Eleanor Lee of Medford, the youngest exponents of modern ballroom dancing in New England, will be the principal entertainers at the first annual ball of the Dancers' Club of Boston at Hotel Vendome next Monday evening.

HAS THE TEST ARTIST ANY "STICKERS"?

Test Editor Fears His Hand May Have Lost Its Cunning

By THE TEST EDITOR.

It would almost appear to be high time for this Test Artist to give us something to do. Hasn't he got any problems worth calling problems? Has his hand lost its cunning? Isn't he going to come through, somewhere, sometime, somehow, with a "sticker" or two?

With the Boston American's $5,000 Famous Titles Test almost two-thirds over we have yet to see any problem the equivalent of "Arrested," "Engaged," "A Dozen of Them," "Aerial Navigation" and "Indoors and Out" pictures of the Book Test.

When the Famous Titles Test is ended and we begin the reprinting of the pictures with their Correct Titles it probably will appear that more than one contestant had met his Waterloo before Test Drawing No. 37 was printed and that Mr. Artist HAS produced a few genuine "stickers."

THERE ARE 219 AWARDS.

Assuming that every contestant has correctly named each and every Test Drawing up to date (which is "some" assumption), it certainly looks as if it would be a difficult task to find money enough for all the winners in a single parcel of $5,000. Perhaps Mr. Artist will wake up and help to simplify the problem, for early next month the 219 contestants who stand in the largest numbers of Correct Titles must be paid the following awards in cash:

First Award	$1,000
Second Award	750
Third Award	500
Fourth Award	400
Fifth Award	300
Sixth Award	200
Seventh Award	150
Eighth Award	100
Ninth Award	50
100 Awards of $10 Each	1,000
110 Awards of $5 Each	550
Total	$5,000

Tuesday's mail box was almost empty:

Dear Sir—

Although you have repeatedly stated in the column devoted to our indoor sport that there would be no pictures "upside down" that is hidden pictures, you have said nothing about "sideways." Now in drawing No. 25 there appears to be the formation of a head. I would like your opinion of that, and please don't suggest that I change my brand.

Lawrence Old Timer.

There are no concealed pictures, upside down or any other way. These are not trick pictures in that sense. Every picture tells its own story. Stop "seeing things" that are not there.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

Dear Sir—According to your answer to R. N. S. a few days ago, "Highland Cattle" is not the Correct Title of Drawing No. 25. Am I right? G. G.

Lynn.

Did you ever see nicer weather at this time of the year!

Dear Test Editor—Would it be too much to ask if in Test Drawing No. 28 there is a woman to be seen right through the image of the other woman? It appears to me as if there is a lady sitting on the steps of that house and the image stands in front of her, or is it only a blur? E. M. G.

Providence.

I wish I could help you, but all I can say is that there are no pictures concealed within other pictures in this Test.

Dear Sir—In hunting for Correct Titles will the words be found in a common Household Dictionary, or would a person have to look in an encyclopedia?

Pine Point. M. W. H.

Perhaps five-sixths of all the problems in this Test will be easy enough for anybody to solve, while the other sixth will demand inquiry. The artist is not bound in the way you suggest. For his "genuine stickers" he is free to go to any reference book.

CONTESTANTS TITLE QUERIES ANSWERED

Test Editor Straightens Out Matters Puzzling Some of Participants

Following are answers to queries of participants in the Famous Titles Test:

Albert S., Roxbury—The Membership Competition $5,000, in my judgment, will be paid in May. I have no facts upon which to base a reply to your other question.

Harriet, Melrose—The artist is a native American. He was born in Maine, spent his early life in California, resides in a Boston suburb and does a lot of work for newspaper syndicates. Yes, to both your other questions.

G. L. T., Allston—The use of a blank book is not required: four of the nine leaders in the Book Title Test did not use such a book. If I were a contestant, however, I would use one because the book is almost a guarantee of neatness.

Grace M., Newton—You will be given at least three days after the printing of Test Drawing No. 60.

J. J. B., South Boston—It will all depend upon how contestants feel when the present Test is ended. The biggest contests—those with the largest numbers of participants—are held in the Fall, Winter and early Spring.

Adele, Brighton—For the convenience of contestants we have been supplied with all drawings later than No. 22 (and up to date) and these are on sale at five cents each. If you come to the office for them the price is three cents.

Jerome, East Boston—I know no more about it than you do; the artist says you are mistaken.

WARZIR NATIVES IN INDIA ON WARPATH

Bombay, India, April 12 (By International News Service).—The Waziri natives have gone upon the warpath and are committing depredations upon a great scale, according to information from Simla today. They surrounded a fort at Wana and were not dispersed until reinforcements reached the fort by airplane.

RUSSIANS PLAN FOR BARGAIN AT GENOA

Counter Proposals to Demands of Allies to Be Given Conference

By International News Service.

Genoa, April 12.—The Russian delegation to the International Economic Conference will submit counter proposals to the Russian reconstruction plan of the Allied experts, according to a report in Russian circles.

The Russians came to Genoa to bargain, their chief aim being to secure recognition of the Moscow Soviet Government. They believe that once they secure recognition all Russia's troubles will end.

An outline of the Allied proposals shows France played a strong hand in their preparation. The chief demands are that the Moscow Government recognize all the domestic and foreign debts of the old Imperial Government and of the Socialist regime that followed the Russian revolutions.

The Allies call on the Soviet Government to pay indemnity for all damage sustained by foreigners and by foreign owned property in Russia as a result of disorders for which the Moscow Government could be held responsible. The Russians are expected to make a counter demand that the Allies indemnity Russia for the damage wrought by the various anti-Bolshevik military campaigns in Russia. The Moscow Government claims that the wars fought by Admiral Kolchak, General Denikin and General Wrangel all were financed and supported by the Allied and Associated Powers.

ARISTOCRATIC POST HAS QUIT LEGION

New York, April 12.—The Naval Aviation Post of the American Legion, with 200 members, displeased at the attitude of the Legion on the bonus, has surrendered its Legion charter and reorganized as the Naval Aviators' Club, an independent organization. The club is composed exclusively of young men who enlisted in the navy flying service at the outbreak of the war, and most of its members are listed in the social register.

PRINCE OF WALES IS WELCOMED IN JAPAN

Yokohama, April 12 (By the Associated Press).—The Prince of Wales arrived today for his official visit to Japan. Thousands greeted him as he landed from the British battle cruiser Renown. Yokohama's welcome was not noisy, judging by the American standard for such occasions, as the children who lined the street are disciplined to silence, but the picture they made with their thousands of waving flags in the brilliant sunshine could scarcely be paralleled.

SENTENCE MEMBER OF "TUG" WILSON'S GANG

James D. Shea, known as "Scraper Shea," said by Middlesex County officials to be a member of the same gang as Earl ("Tug") Wilson, was sentenced to one year in the House of Correction for stealing an automobile by Judge John F. Brown in Middlesex Superior Criminal Court. Shea, it is alleged, stole the car from a Cambridge garage. Assistant District Attorney R. H. Bordreau, the prosecuting officer in the case, told the court that he had reason to believe that Shea was a member of the famous Cambridge and Charlestown gang of thieves.

BOTH SIDES SEE HOPE ON NAVAL BUDGET

Washington, April 12.—As the House proceeded with its last day of debate on the 1923 naval budget, leaders urging and opposing an enlisted strength of 65,000 claimed votes enough to win on the big point at issue. This may not be reached until next week. Opposing an "insurgent" party fight to increase the total to 80,000, Chairman Madden of the Appropriations Committee and Chairman Kelley of the Sub-Committee in charge of the measure reiterated this would add $20,000,000 to the bill's total of $333,000,000 for men alone.

FREE AMERICAN RADIO SET IS DIFFERENT

Victor Supersensitive Receiver Can Be Tuned to Obtain Maximum Sound

By A. B. HOAG.

The Victor supersensitive radiophone receiving sets which are being given away free in this Boston American are different from all other metal sets on the market.

This is because of a patent held by the manufacturer of the Victor set, which covers an ingenious method of wedding of the primary and secondary coils. Because of this feature the Victor set can be very sensitive so that the maximum sound and clearness is obtainable.

Besides this it is so joined in a neat box with all switches out of place anywhere in the home. On its front is the tuning dial and the crystal receiver and catwhisker which give to the set the quality and clearness appearance.

Because of the fact it is very difficult to buy receiving sets anywhere in the city, as the manufacturers cannot begin to supply the orders at present.

These sets are free. All that you have to do to get one of these sets is to get twenty new subscribers to the Boston American to cut among your friends and neighbors and explain why you want them to subscribe.

[illegible] as to how to get the twenty new subscriptions in the shortest possible time and any other information you may need will be given freely at No. 440 Lexington street Boston.

GIRL PRAISES VICTOR.

One of the most enthusiastic boosters of the Boston American's offer of free radio sets is Miss Helen Fitzgerald of Roxbury. She became one after she had been given an opportunity to see how clearly and well [illegible] radio concerts were reproduced by the Victor set.

"I never thought radio telephony was anything about it, and I left it [illegible] used for a few moments. I supposed you couldn't hear much of anything by silences and hisses. But the lights in the room just as really as if it was the same room, only a little softer. It's [illegible] clearer than a photograph even."

PLAYS ACCOMPANIMENT.

Miss Fitzgerald was so impressed with its reproduction that she sat down at the piano and played an accompaniment to the voice solo that was coming through the air. By listening at one of the receivers it was possible to listen to a piano and violin or with the two instruments at once, then a voice apart.

Get in line, you lucky fans, and see if you can beat Mr. Price to Manager so he is handing out sets that he can't go to dinner.

LYNCH ROBBED OF WELL-EARNED VICTORY IN MARTIN BOUT

WEIRD VERDICTS RILE ARENA FIGHT FANS; OFFICIALS HOOTED

Wild Verdicts Spill the "Dope"

By GILL.

Tough luck, boys

With everything all set for a big night, and a clear slate for the day, someone hurls a wrench in the machinery with a couple of weird verdicts.

Every boxing expert in town agrees that Lynch had some thing on Martin, while the shifting of the decision in the Paulson-White bout only puts the whole judging system on the fritz

Too bad—but there are other days coming

You can't beat the judges even if the best man does not win.

By JACK CONWAY

Terry Martin [illegible] received a gift decision over Jackie Lynch, former welterweight champion, at the end of [illegible] at the Arena A. C. last night.

Boston American Ring Decisions

At Paris—Criqui knocked out Ben Tallon in three rounds.

At Fall River—"Chick" Suggs won over Danny Edwards.

At New York—Jack Sharkey trounced Sammy Noble.

At Arena—Lynch beat Martin, but judges gave verdict to Martin. Tommy Nee beat Ruby Levine, Young Miller beat Young Donahue, Jim White beat Mike Paulson.

Maybe one of these gentlemen voted for Lynch. But as a result of our secret ballot system the gentleman who showed intelligence, if there was one, will be unknown.

[illegible] White won every round but the fifth. The betting was 10 to 1, with White the favorite, as the boys battled in the eighth and final round.

[illegible] White had Lynch groggy in the seventh, but Jackie came back strong in the eighth and had the better of the milling in the final round.

Referee Brassil's ballot also was made in favor of Paulson. Brassil, according to Buckley, admitted that he had given White and crossed out the latter's name by mistake. Buckley then entered the decision reversed.

[illegible] Personally we don't believe in any game laid would keep a bet be won on the first decision, though he would be justified in doing so as far as the rules of boxing are concerned. Decisions cannot be changed. If they are rotten, they must stand as such.

Martin Did Much Slapping and Little Real Punching

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. Forbes

Let's quarrel among ourselves if we must. But should we not try to present a united front when we come to dealing with the peoples—and the markets—of other lands?

The character, the reputation, the standing of great American enterprises have too frequently been injured and crippled in their efforts to capture foreign markets by the attacks made upon them and the unfriendly attitude adopted towards them by our government and by other public bodies.

For example, when a foreign legislative body has been discussing proposed legislation which would affect American corporations, competitors of these corporations have had foreign law-makers stand up and read extracts from governmental denunciations of the American corporations concerned. It has been easy to convince foreign legislative bodies that they had to guard the country against competition, not from honest companies, but against American companies that were crooks through and through—as revealed by official governmental documents prepared and issued by the American authorities themselves. Often—far than once this has hurt American opportunities for sending goods to other countries and has, as a consequence, emptied American pay envelopes.

American packers have suffered particularly severely in foreign markets from this sort of thing. Our own authorities have painted the packers as the blackest of black sheep. And these charges have been used as weapons by foreign competitors.

Yet, when the British Board of Trade conducted an investigation into alleged condemnable practices of American packers in Brazil, it could not find that these packers, such as maligned by their own government, had been guilty of any dishonorable conduct in South America. The president of the Board of Trade was fair enough to stand up this week and tell the House of Commons that, contrary to allegations which had been made, "no complaint had been made of unfair trading by American companies beyond severe cutting of prices for purposes of developing trade or clearing surplus stock."

Standard Oil interests have suffered similarly. In their battles for foreign trade and for foreign concessions to develop oil properties they have encountered opposition which was buttressed by the presentation of damaging statements made against them by the American authorities. "See what a pack of scoundrels these Standard Oil people are; it is our duty to keep them out of our country," is a sample of the arguments sometimes used by rivals who desired to capture these markets and these concessions for themselves exclusively.

* * *

Unfortunately, we have had too many administrations that could not grasp the importance of doing everything legitimate and possible to back up American companies in their efforts to develop American trade in foreign fields. The refreshing spirit at Washington too often has been that enunciated by ex-Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan: If there were Americans foolish enough to invest their money in Mexican enterprises, let them suffer the consequences. They should have stayed at home.

Chicago Grain Market.

By Cosmopolitan News Service.

Chicago, April 12.—Wheat developed strength at the outset and prices worked sharply higher as Eastern buying started prominently among overnight shorts. News was more favorable for the bulls and there appeared to be little desire to press the selling side. Corn followed wheat up readily. Shorts were moderate buyers. Trade was fairly active. Movement of corn from the interior is very light. Cash corn was slow in starting. Interest in oats was small. Provisions were slow and weak. Easiness in hogs was depressing. Hogs at yards were slow and 10c lower.

Opening prices were: Wheat—May, 1.31¾ to 1.32; July, 1.27¾ to 1.27½; corn—May, 1.14¾ to 1.14¾; July, 98¾ to 98¾, unchanged to off ½c; oats—May, 37¾ to 37¾, off ¼c to unchanged; July, 36¾ to 36¾, unchanged; pork—May, 18.70 to 18.70; July, 18.70 to 18.70; lard—May, 10.47 to 10.47; July, 11.10; Sept., 11.30; ribs—May, 10.00 to 10.00; July, 10.80 to 10.80; Sept., 11.00.

Cotton Market Opening

New York, April 12.—The cotton market was 7 to 9 points lower at the opening, but the tone was steady. Business was mostly local. Japanese interests, local traders and commission houses bought. Opening prices were: May, 17.70; July, 17.57; Oct., 17.12; Dec., 17.10; Jan., 17.05.

PROFIT-TAKING CAUSES LATE REACTION

Trading Is Very Broad and of Big Volume; Many Issues Sell at New Highs

By W. H. ROSS.
Financial Editor.

A heavy tone prevailed at the close of the New York market after one of the broadest and most active sessions of the year. Transactions exceeded 1,500,000 shares. Profit taking was general in last hour.

It wiped out many gains. A lower money rate and declaration of extra dividends by several corporations stimulated buying until afternoon. The placing of more car orders contributed to the strength and activity of equipment stocks.

New Haven closed at 29, up 1½; Studebaker was down 2 at 118¾; Mexican Petroleum was off 3 at 190; U. S. Steel finished at 94, or ¾ lower; Southern Pacific had declined 2¾ to 88 and Bethlehem B 1¾ to 78¾.

American Locomotive closed with a four-point gain at 116, while Baldwin was up ¼ at 116¼. Pierce Arrow preferred had advanced 4¾ to 16¾.

The market had a strong start and barring slight reactionary periods due to profit-taking, maintained an upward trend during the morning. More than a dozen of issues sold at new 1922 highs and record highs were established by Lima Locomotive, Car & Foundry, Computing Tabulating and Pacific Oil. Oils were the most active issues in early trading, but foreign petroleums reacted during the afternoon.

Rails were rather heavy. Coppers were active and higher. Gains were increased at midday by a number of issues, but in the afternoon realization sales increased to an extent to weaken the list. The market was irregular in the last hour. Advances during the day were about five points at the most. A number of issues were off a point or more.

Especially active stocks included Mexican Petroleum, Studebaker, Pierce-Arrow, New Haven, American Sugar, American Woolen, U. S. Steel, Baldwin, Crucible, Bethlehem B, Gulf States, Steel, Pacific Oil and American Locomotive.

Call money opened at 4½ per cent. and dropped to 4. Foreign exchange showed little change.

Listed Bonds Are Very Active

By MUNROE ROBERTS.
Copyright, 1922, Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, April 12.—The listed bond market had one of its most active sessions today, attracted by the announcement that the government expects to float its next short term loan at 3½ per cent. The leadership was naturally assumed by the Liberty issues. The First 3½s advancing .74 to 100.06, crossing par for the first time since 1918. The Second 4¼s rose up to 99.36. Third 4¼s at 99.76, Fourth 4¼s at 99.78 and Victory 4¾s at 100.04.

Trading in the so-called speculative railroad bonds was on a large scale, accompanied by the usual strength in prices. Gains were often found in a bull stock market. The Erie General 4s made a gain of 1¼ points, sold on a high price of 52; Seaboard Airline 4s crossed 60 for the first time this year; New York Central deb. 6s gained a point at 103¾.

High priced industrial bonds were active, though price changes were negligible. The same may be said of foreign bonds.

Liberty Bond Prices

New York, April 12.—Opening prices for Liberty bonds were: 3½s, 100.04—second 4¼s, 99.30; third 4¼s, 99.76; fourth 4¼s, 99.78; Victory 4¾s, 100.00; Victory 4¾s, 100.08.

Noon prices were: 3½s, 100.06; second 4¼s, 99.32; third 4¼s, 99.76; fourth 4¼s, 99.78; Victory 4¾s, 100.02; Victory 4¾s, 100.02.

Road Orders 19,500 Cars

New York, April 12.—The New York Central has distributed orders for 19,500 cars.

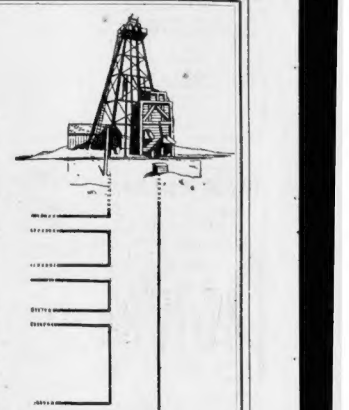
One Hundred Million Goldfield's Production



If what eminent geologists and experienced engineers contend is true, the Goldfield District, which has already given $100,000,000 in gold to the world, will further increase the world's wealth. Each day's work sees the 5x17 foot, three compartment shaft of the Deep Mines Company down many feet nearer to the strata of rich, paying ore said to lie at depth in the Goldfield District.

The Goldfield Deep Mines Company owns more than 600 acres of mineral land in the heart of this district. Surface croppings on this land, extending nearly a mile, prove the existence of a vein system that goes down to a depth of at least 1,400 feet—a vein system that has never been uncovered.

History will Repeat Itself

Will gold be found in paying quantities? It is my firm conviction that such will be the case. And this conviction is based upon not only the opinion of men learned in such things but also upon what has happened in the case of other great mines, when deep mining was employed. The famous mines at Butte, Montana; Cripple Creek, Colorado; the Mother Lode and Grass Valley mines of California; the mines of Utah, Idaho, Arizona, Alaska, Australia, South Africa, and Peru, when mined to depth, brought a rich reward to their stockholders.

Authorities state Gold is present

No idle supposition prompted the sinking of the great shaft that daily reaches down into the depths of the rich Goldfield District. Before undertaking so important a task, voluminous data from other sections was obtained. Then, geologists and experienced engineers made exhaustive examinations and reports—surveyors went carefully over the ground.

The men in charge of the Deep Mines Company are not pioneers in sinking to depth. They have carefully made plans and are going forward in the most painstaking way, steadily and surely toward their goal—rich, paying ore.

And their work is to be completed! Nevada's richest banker has given this assurance. After investigating the territory and its possibilities, he states that even if not another share of stock is sold, the shaft of the Goldfield Deep Mines Company positively will be sunk to the 2,400 foot level!

To me, this is most gratifying confirmation of my conviction that the possibilities for profit are great.

Deep Mines Stock will advance in price

In view of the steady and sure progress being made towards the 2,400 foot level—in view of expert opinion that gold is present in paying quantities—in view of results obtained in cases where other big mines were extended to depth—it is inevitable, in my opinion, that the price of Deep Mines Stock must advance.

In fact, I am positive that the demand for my present allotment of stock at 20c per share will not supply the demand, but will go as quickly as did the allotment at 12½c per share. I urge you to wire your order at once, and let your check follow by mail.

I came from Goldfield, Nevada, to Boston for the purpose of acquainting you with the conditions as they exist at that famous camp. I shall be glad to discuss matters with you at your convenience.

Ask your Banker to get a Dun or Bradstreet report on the GOLDFIELD Deep Mines Company of Nevada.

I have just arrived from Goldfield, Nevada

From information I consider absolutely reliable, I estimate, as a result of Goldfield Deep Mines advertising, investors in New England, New York and Pennsylvania have purchased more than a million shares of stock from brokers who have not made delivery of the certificates to their customers. At one quarter of a dollar per share these orders were demanded, and allotment at my selling price of 20c would be exhausted, and no present purchaser of Deep Mines stock would be on the basis of 25c per share.

Further, the money you have paid your broker instead of being used by him in the condu

Big Business Champion

Senator Lodge Does Not Represent in His Views Even a Large Minority of the People of the State

The Boston American agrees with Mr. Sherman L. Whipple that Senator Lodge cannot be defeated with a platform of platitudes. While Senator Lodge is not a man of attractive personality, yet in a contest between two mere personalities Senator Lodge's long experience and the habit of the Massachusetts electorate would assure his election.

But Senator Lodge does not represent in his views on public questions, in his sympathies, in his natural associations, a majority or even a large minority of this State. On domestic questions he is almost never right, according to the general public interests.

His record is so clear that we doubt if even he himself would deny that in the Senate he is the representative of highly organized big business rather than the unorganized rank and file.

On foreign affairs we always had an idea that his partisanship stopped at the water's edge and that neither the Republican organization or big business could taint his Americanism. We were shaken in this idea by his vote on the Panama Canal toll question. President Wilson, betraying his solemn pledges under British influence, asked Congress to repeal the Panama toll act so that British ships could be put on an equality with American ships passing through the canals, although we built the canal and paid for its operation. Lodge voted for the British measure, although he knew and acknowledged that there was no treaty obligation to do so.

The advocates of the League of Nations charged his opposition to the league to mere partisanship. But we were then inclined to return to our old idea of him as an intense American with respect to matters beyond our borders. Now, however, his vote on the treaty with Great Britain and Japan has shown that the League of Nations' friends were right about him. He opposed the League of Nations from mere pique and partisanship.

If Senator Lodge is to be beaten it must be by a man of senatorial stature who represents the antithesis of Lodge's principle and policies; who knows how to state those principles and to expound them, and who dares to do so.

Perhaps Colonel Gaston did not mean his brief statement to be a platform. Perhaps he intends to tell us how he stands on foreign questions, especially on those involving foreign entanglements; how he stands on the legal status of labor, which the courts have been emasculating in recent years; how he stands on the causes of unemployment; how he stands on national child labor law; how he stands on taking the joker out of the Clayton act; how he stands on the railroad question, and how he stands on the soldiers' bonus.

Sign of Good Health

Boston's Boast Is Not That She Has No Scandals, but That She Has Exposed Them

There appears to be plenty of superficial evidence that the most rigorous investigation is being made into the civil service corruption.

It does seem as if Boston is having its fill of scandals. We surely are fulfilling the old law that it never rains but it pours. We may well ask, what next?

There is, however, a consolation in the fact that these troubles will have their run and end in time. Like diseases, they are better out than in. Every kind of corruption is better exposed to the air and the sun than hidden away where nobody expects it, poisoning all the body politic for years.

We do not want to be as Philadelphia was once said to be, "corrupt and contented." These scandals, like dirty linen, had better be exposed and washed than kept in a dark closet to breed more germs. It may hurt our pride a little, but our moral and political health will be very much better.

Lord Erskine, in one of his brilliant forensic flights, said that "a cyclone may destroy our dwellings and dissipate our commerce, but it drives before it the lazy elements, without which we might stagnate into pestilence." Our sign of health is not that we have no scandals, but that we have exposed them.

Nantasket Boat Fares

Increasing Rates on Sundays and Holidays an Unjust Policy

Representative Kelley of Dorchester is trying to stop the practice of increasing the fares on the Nantasket boats on holidays and Sundays.

The Boston American has always been opposed to this practice. It is the very reverse of a just policy. It is the poor, or at least those who are not well-to-do, who use the Nantasket boats on Sundays and holidays. It is the well-to-do who use them on ordinary days—the well-to-do who can afford to have Summer homes on the South Shore and who commute on the Nantasket boats.

By every policy of a true and a just government those who can afford to pay most should be required to pay most, and in any event those who can afford to pay the least should not be obliged to pay the most.

A short and beautiful sail like that from Boston to Nantasket on a Summer's day when a man is free from his labor and may take his family for an outing is something that the government ought to encourage, even at a little cost. It is an outing for the woman of the house, who, unaided by servants, finds little chance to go out except on such days. It breaks the monotony of her housework and must add greatly to her efficiency and to her health.

It tends to increase the solidarity of the family when the husband and father, and mother, and children can spend a holiday pleasurably together. It has a social and physical value which ought not to be nullified by unjust discrimination, but ought even to be promoted at considerable cost on the part of the government.

The Great Spring Eruption

Somebody's Birthday

Copyright, 1922, by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.

IF today is the anniversary of your birth your character is one that is probably more to be loved than admired, for while you have fine virtues and splendid impulses in general you have also your faults.

You are naturally kind, generous and sympathetic and there is practically nothing you would not do for a friend in need. But at the same time you demand a certain amount of credit for acts you perform and if you do not get it you are apt to be morose and denounce the world as a cold barren plain inhabited by ghouls and ingrates.

You are inventive, imaginative and artistic and keenly appreciative of all that is beautiful and not unmindful of the occasional beautiful passages in your own thoughts which you have no hesitation in repeating. Intellectually you are keen and alert.

Today is one of doubtful omen. For new projects it is generally bad, but of ventures in any way connected with minerals (including gems) it is quite auspicious.

Your ensuing year will bring a great new spiritual power into your life through the friendships of a person born under the sign of Leo—July 22 to August 22.

A child born today will be inventive and easily taught, but rather unmanageable in disposition.

Famous persons born today:

Henry Clay, statesman; Pierre Borden, manufacturer; Charles Foster, Secretary of the Treasury, author and lawyer; Donald Grant Mitchell (Ike Marvel), essayist.

NOTED SCULPTOR TELLS WHY STATUES ARE DULL

LONDON, April 12. — What makes the statues of London so dull, and what can or should be done to make them more interesting?

The famous sculptor, Captain Jones, discusses the subject in an article, which follows:

"The recent suggestion that London should have statues of a humorous nature serves to draw attention to the shortcomings of many of those already in existence, and may, perhaps, be instrumental in effecting a movement towards something better in the future.

"The present system, whereby a sculptor is commissioned to make a statue of some one already dead to be erected on a site which has not yet been chosen, can be productive of nothing but the wooden, lifeless effigies which are far from being an asset to the streets of London.

"The first thing that a sculptor should know is where it is intended that his statue should stand, so that the design, not only of the figure but of the plinth that supports it, can conform with the architecture of the surrounding buildings and give an effect of harmony instead of discord.

"It has, unfortunately, become the fashion to mount statues on a perfectly plain block of stone, under the mistaken impression that it indicates strength. As a matter-of-fact, it indicates nothing but a lack of imagination, and detracts from the value of the figure by breaking the continuity of design, which is essential to an artistic conception.

"It is manifestly unfair to expect a sculptor to make his statue 'live' if he never has an opportunity of seeing the living man and studying and absorbing his personality. Yet that is what often happens. The celebrity's clothes are worn by a model, and the face is copied from a photograph. Can one be surprised that most of London's statues look the lay figures that they are? A transcript of nature is not art. Art is something more than this."

BIDDING IN AUCTION BRIDGE

Card Values in an Assisting Hand

IT is more puzzling for the third player to calculate the trick value and assisting value of his hand when the Declarer has been overcalled in a Trump declaration and he is put in the position of raising or passing. The number of small Trumps, Blank suits, Singletons, Doubletons, as well as honors and side suit strength have all got to be considered. The value of some of these are as follows:

Blank suit with Trumps for ruffing, 2 tricks.

Singletons with Trumps for ruffing, 1 trick.

Doubletons with Trumps for ruffing, ½ trick.

Three small Trumps, ½ trick.

One honor and one small Trump, ½ trick.

One honor and two small Trumps, 1½ tricks.

Two honors and two small Trumps, 2 tricks.

Four or more small Trumps without short suits for ruffing, 1 trick.

Except in No Trumps guarded Queens are not safe to reckon on and five small Trumps in the Dummy are of no greater value than four, as the excess fail to the Declarer's leads.

Estimating values in the hand of the Declarer's partner in a No Trump is very different. There are No Trumps or ruffing, and Queens, Jacks, Tens and the small cards are more important than in a Trump hand.

The player should also become familiar with the general run of hands as related to each other, which can be done quite simply and without outside assistance. Shuffle and cut a deck of cards in the usual way. Then deal around the table as if there were four persons really present. Pick up each hand by itself, beginning with the dealer, sort it and make declarations one after another, just as would be made in a regular game. This done spread all the hands face upward on the table, when you will get a good ocular demonstration of the relations of the individual hands to each other, as well as a fair idea as to the wisdom of the declarations you have made. From time to time play the hands through.

Do this repeatedly and for perhaps fifteen or twenty times at a sitting. We know of no better way for a player to familiarize himself with the relation of hands to each other or to get confidence in his bidding when he sits down in a regular game.

New Laws for Children

CHICAGO, April 12. — More laws to aid parents in ruling their children were advocated by Miss Jessie Binford, of the Interdepartment Social Science Board.

"Youth is having the wildest fling in the history of the country," she said, in a speech before the Chicago Health Conference, "and parents are powerless to check it."

"Thousands of girls in Chicago are leading irregular lives. The youth of the delinquents is amazing. We have tried scores of regulations, but without success. We must strengthen the morals of boys and girls by law, if no other way."

But conditions in Chicago are mild compared to smaller towns, in the opinion of Mrs. Julia F. Kennedy, educational supervisor in the social hygiene division of the State Department of Public Health.

"Conditions in the small towns are worse than in the city," she said. "They are so bad as to be almost indescribable.

"Recently I found a group of high school girls every one of whom had a small flask tied about her neck and carried inside the bosom of her dress. In another school four pupils were expelled for being drunk in school."

She held that much of the blame should be placed on the parents, and urged "that young people must be told the truth about life and about themselves."

Both speakers said the health of thousands of girls has been permanently impaired through immorality.

THE LATEST FAD OF A ROVING WIFE

By Winifred Black

Copyright, 1922, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

SHE has moved again — the woman who is always moving.

She's tired of the big house, she says, and so she's hunted up the sweetest little cottage you ever saw—honeysuckled don't you know, and roses and a pergola, oh, too delicious for words! Just the image of the place in the last act when the heroine comes back home to die in her mother's arms after the prince has turned out to be a rascal.

And won't I come and have tea with her in the pergola, and drink buttermilk and eat crumbly cookies and help her to lead the simple life?

She's tired of butlers and maids and chauffeurs, she says. She's sick to death of velvet and satin and heavy silk, and she's having a lot of cottage frocks made, gingham and flowered organdies and dimities and dotted muslins, and she's going to wear garden hats with wreaths of field flowers. Oh, it's all going to be different at the new house!

She's Always Moving

Let's see. The last time she moved she was tired of a stuffy, old-fashioned place and wanted something artistic, don't you know, and temperamental. French mahogany, gray and polished, and queer, futurist paintings, and soft, faded hangings, and she herself in a crushed velvet which looked as if she had slept in it in the dew.

And before that she went back to Colonial simplicity. She leased a house with green blinds and a big porch and pillars, and tried to get a New England old maid in the kitchen.

And before that she lived in a hotel—dear me, why, the woman is always moving.

I wonder what's the matter with her? I think I know, but I don't think she does.

She's tired of her husband and she wants to get away from him, and she thinks that if she keeps moving she will feel differently about him. She knows she wants some kind of a change —but just exactly what she doesn't really understand.

Poor thing, I'm sorry for her, but I'm sorrier yet for her husband. He must feel as if he were married to a chameleon.

There's a Stay-at-Home

I wonder if she amuses him, or if he doesn't get tired sometimes and wish he had married plain Mary, who has worn her hair the same way for the last ten years and who would not move for anything in the world.

Mary is married to Jimmie, the rover.

Jimmie goes to Africa to shoot big game and to Florida to catch tarpon, to California to grow figs and to Italy to study the ways of the lazzaroni, to France to look up the newest fad among the futurists and to Honolulu to see what the Japs are really doing there, to Mexico to poke around in the Aztec ruins and to Bermuda to pick lilies in March and to South America to see if he can't find some new sort of hard wood.

Jimmie could have married the woman who moved, and Mary could have married the husband of the woman who moved. They could have each other when they went to school.

Isn't it queer how such things turn out?

Which would you rather be, or the woman who moves, I know which I choose—but I shan't tell, not today, anyhow.

To the Editor

Fly the City's Colors

Editor Boston American:

In connection with the approaching observance of the 100th anniversary of its incorporation as a city (May 1, 1822-May 1, 1922), it has been suggested that a more popular use should be made of the official flag and colors of the city of Boston.

The city flag was officially adopted five years ago, under the provisions of Chapter 8, Ordinances of 1916. This action was preceded by a public discussion of the subject, the consideration of many designs by a special committee of the Public Celebrations Association and the final approval and recommendation of the Boston Art Commission.

The suggestion is offered that the flag of the city of Boston be flown, at least on holidays and special occasions, from city buildings and in the city parks and recreation grounds; and that it be also displayed by such private organizations and individuals as may be interested in so doing, thus stimulating civic pride.

In this connection a proclamation has been issued by His Honor the Mayor, granting permission to all who display the flag of the United States during the centennial year of 1922 to display in conjunction therewith the flag of the city of Boston.

J. PHILIP O'CONNELL,
Director of Public Celebrations.

COULD YOU WRITE A SIMILAR LETTER?

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

BOYS never get over being boys—until they are men.

And, even then, most of us still remain "kids," while others like to go out "with the boys" and thus to prove that they are willing to take youthful chances.

But, certainly, in school days, boys will be boys. Generation after generation, they play the same pranks, get into the same scrapes and scrapes, and in general keep near the border line of serious trouble.

Indeed, sometimes they cross the border—and then there's the piper to pay!

As in the case of those Brooklyn boys of fourteen, who got into a typical school fight, half play, half earnest. In the rough-and-tumble one accidentally killed the other.

Which One to Pity!

It is hard to know which one to pity the more—the victim cut off, in the always rich promise of youth, or the unfortunate culprit, who starts towards adult life with the mental handicap of a terrible memory.

Fortunately for the survivor of the sham battle which turned into genuine tragedy, the Brooklyn public was agreed that the case was one for sympathy rather than condemnation. So the young boy at least does not have to carry the added burden of public prejudice.

What relieves this grim tragedy from deadly prose and lifts it to the level of poetic drama, is the shining attitude and action of the little victim's father. He wrote to the boy, who had accidentally killed his son, a letter of such high spiritual calibre that the writer and his words deserve at least that further help towards deathless influence which the printed page may lend.

Here, then, is a verbatim reproduction of the letter which George W. Cisney of Brooklyn, father of Harold Cisney, the fourteen-year-old Erasmus Hall High School boy, wrote to the boy's opponent in that unfortunate fight:

"My Dear Teddy—Your dear father and mother were here this evening and told me how bad you felt for the accident which caused the death of my beloved son Harold. I pity them for the sorrow they feel, and my heart goes out in tenderness for you.

"Believe me, Teddy, I wish you to know that I hold no unkindly feeling towards you. Come to me and allow me to put my arms around you. You can lessen my sorrow by trying to fill a little of the great void in me that Harold's death has left in my heart.

"Resolve to be a manly boy and true, and all will be well. Your forgiving and faithful friend, George W. Cisney."

Wouldn't you like to know Mr. Cisney personally? Here's a hand to him, through space, and a welcome into the ranks of the great lovers of the world, Jesus and Buddha and Abou Ben Adhem and the rest!

The present writer does not mind admitting that the reading of this letter brought tears to his eyes and a catch into his throat and a prayer of praise into his heart, for the beauty of the human stuff, thus glorified anew by the large-souled action of George W. Cisney.

Put yourself in his place. It is only then that you can justly appraise the value of his deed.

If somebody had even accidentally killed one who is as dear to you as evidently was this man's son to him, could you, as promptly rid your spirit of vengefulness, hatred, and blame?

Humbly Happy

Perhaps, you could! If so, you should be humbly happy in your spiritual stature. For you are as divinely human (at least theoretically) as Mr. Cisney actually is. You know that it is human, for the other fellow (we say it too easily for ourselves), to err, and that it is divine to forgive.

These is a further fact to be noted about this moral hero; namely, that Mr. Cisney has really achieved fatherhood. His paternal heart has room not only for the son of his own flesh, but for the boy whose fatal hand unhappily bereft him!

Think of his being able honestly to say: "Come to me and allow me to put my arms around you!"

As Jesus said, when He stretched His hand towards His miscellaneous followers: "These are My mother and My brothers," so a man like Mr. Cisney in effect says to all the little ones of the world: "These are my children!"

An incident like this reveals again the beauty of the human heart by which we live.

It inspires and stimulates us to extend indefinitely the spirit of parenthood and whatever relationship, friendship and whatever other form of love.

Crowd your capacious heart, and keep always in full view the sign which says: "Room to let."
